Viva parties urged to resume talks

TRANSIT York Region was urging its Viva rapid bus service contractor to get back to the bargaining table with its drivers yesterday, following the early morning start of a strike that came as a surprise to many of the system's 35,000 daily riders. "Our hope is they could reconvene as soon as possible," said York Region Transit general manager Don Gordon. Viva's 164 drivers, who are employed by France-based Veolia, workers rejected a tentative deal Wednesday evening. Though thousands of commuters took the option of driving to work, police reported no major blockages.

Subway closure Rush-hour chaos at Bloor

SAUL PORTO/TOP NEWS

Stranded commuters wait for shuttle buses outside the Bloor subway station yesterday. Train service between Lawrence and Bloor stations shut down close to 6 p.m. after electrical cables fell on the tracks. Shuttle buses were deployed after the mishap occurred but almost immediately were crammed well beyond capacity, resulting in rush-hour chaos.

'Toronto 18' youth guilty in terror trial

Canada's first convicted terrorist was a naïve 17-year-old Muslim convert who was easily manipulated, as well as lacking education and street smarts, but in a landmark decision yesterday a judge ruled there was overwhelming evidence that he belonged to a homegrown terrorist group.

"(The youth) clearly understood that the camps were training for a terrorist purpose."
Justice John Sproat

The young man, accused of attending two terrorist training camps and stealing items for the so-called Toronto 18 group, displayed no emotion when the verdict was read in a Brampton court.

"(The youth) clearly understood that the camps were training for a terrorist purpose," said Justice John Sproat as he read from part of his 94-page decision. "He also understood that contributing materials to be used at the camp enhanced the ability of the group to conduct the training."

Prominent in the judge's decision was the testimony of paid police agent Mubin Shaikh, who had come under attack during the trial from Crown prosecutors when they accused their own star witness of fabricating evidence to protect the youth.

The ringleader, arrested among 14 adults and four youths in the summer of 2006, was not a "hapless fanatic who posed no risk," said Sproat.

Members of the group are accused of ordering fertilizer to build truck bombs, constructing a remote-control detonator and scouting a safe house to store weapons and harbour terrorists.

Rough ride for $700B relief plan

Urgent efforts to lash together a $700-billion US rescue plan for the U.S. economy appeared to be stalling last night, hours after key lawmakers had declared they had reached a deal.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson and Federal Reserve chairman Ben Bernanke sped to Capitol Hill to try to revive or rework the proposal that U.S. President George W. Bush said must be quickly approved by Congress to stave off economic disaster.

Congressional leaders were to meet with the economic chiefs into the night. Negotiations continued as of press time.

The day's earlier apparent breakthrough, announced with fanfare at midday, was followed by a White House summit bringing together Bush, presidential contenders John McCain and Barack Obama, and top congressional leaders.

But that meeting, aimed at showing unity in resolving a national financial crisis, broke up with conflicts in plain view.

Inside the session, House Republican leader John Boehner expressed misgivings about the emerging plan and McCain would not commit to supporting it.

Goal

- The plan's centrepiece still is for the government to buy the toxic, mortgage-based assets of shaky financial institutions in a bid to keep them from going under and setting off a cascade of ruinous events.

New vehicle fees hit taxis

Toronto's new $60 vehicle registration tax — that was supposed to apply only to personal vehicles, not commercial ones such as taxi drivers, couriers and newspaper carriers — seems to be hitting drivers who were supposed to be exempt. Taxi drivers were the first to complain, saying that when they went in to renew their plates they were being asked to pay Toronto's new $60 fee as well as the regular provincial fee. Judge acquits woman

A Toronto woman has been acquitted of a charge of concealing a dead baby after a judge struck down a single word in a section of the Criminal Code.

Ivana Levkovic, 26, a former Mississauga stripper, had been scheduled to stand trial Monday in a Brampton courtroom.

Lawyer Michael Moon challenged the law, under the view the section "criminalized" a woman's decision to conceal the fact she was pregnant and either had a stillborn baby, a miscarriage or an abortion.

Levkovic turned herself in four days after Peel police revealed a badly decomposed dead baby had been found on a balcony of a Mississauga apartment on April 5, 2006.

She still remains before the Toronto courts on a similar charge, which Toronto Police laid after her arrest in Peel.

In that case, Toronto police said Levkovic gave birth to a baby, who was born alive, sometime between 2002 and 2003. They alleged the infant was stored in a freezer for several years before being dumped in the Humber River in January 2005.

The body has never been found.

Former Pizza Pizza executive fined

A Toronto businessman is guilty of cheating the public of tax revenues and must pay a hefty fine, a judge has ruled.

Lawrence Austin, once second in charge at Pizza Pizza, pleaded guilty to hiding income of $677,343 he received from the fast food giant in the 1990s. That means he failed to pay about $200,000 in taxes and must pay back that sum, plus a fine of $200,000.

"It's another chapter in my life that is ended," said Austin, 59, who counts the growth of Pizza Pizza as one of his greatest victories.

"It's another chapter in my life that is ended." Lawrence Austin, former second in charge at Pizza Pizza

An agreed statement of facts describes the involvement in the case of Austin's old friend, Pizza Pizza president Michael Overs.

It turns out that some of the money prosecutors thought Austin had pocketed flowed through Austin's accounts and was directed back to Overs.

While preparing their case, prosecutors learned that Overs had disclosed that about one-third of the money paid to Austin had flowed back to Overs.

In what is known as a "voluntary disclosure," Overs paid the Canada Revenue Agency the money he owed. As a result, Overs did not face prosecution.

Council agrees to pay $100,000 in legal bills

City council has approved paying nearly $100,000 in legal bills that Coun. Giorgio Mammoliti and Coun. Adrian Heaps incurred fighting complaints by citizens about their 2006 election campaign expenses.

Mammoliti was seeking $54,000 in legal and consulting costs, and Heaps $40,000 in legal fees. Because the Heaps case is still before the courts, he will be required to repay the full amount if he is found to have contravened campaign spending guidelines.

Council also approved a 10-storey, 153-unit affordable housing project on Birchmount Road, to be built on a parking lot between two existing buildings, overriding Scarborough community council's rejection of the project.

Councillor threatens suit

A city councillor's accusation — broadcast on radio — that one of his colleagues used his influence to have a campaign contributor appointed to a city committee could end up the subject of a lawsuit.

Coun. Adam Vaughan (Ward 20, Trinity-Spadina) says he'll take legal action against Coun. Rob Ford (Ward 2, Etobicoke North) over "libellous comments that have defamed my character."

Ford made the comments on AM640 Radio, where he appears regularly.

Vaughan sits on the civic appointments committee, which reviews citizen appointees to city hall bodies. Vaughan told council yesterday that a person who donated $250 to his campaign had been proposed for appointment to the sinking fund committee, which monitors money held by the city. But Vaughan said the nomination came from senior city staff and he wasn't at the meeting.

"At no point in this process ... was I aware that he was a donor to my campaign; (I) didn't know," Vaughan told council.

YRT official backs privatized transit

TRANSPORT By contracting-out transit, York Region is an anomaly among Canadian municipalities, although privately run transit is widespread in the United States. It's a historical practice, as much as an economic one, that existed before York Region Transit was founded in 2001, according to YRT general manager Don Gordon. But the arrangement brings savings and efficiencies as well. "If you go back to the early '70s, when Markham began providing public transit, that's how all those services began. It's a service delivery model we're comfortable with," said Gordon.

Double trouble for Kinnear?

It's the second day of the second transit strike to strand Toronto region commuters in six months.

With no word of a return to the bargaining table by Veolia and the transit workers' union, 35,000 York Region Viva riders, many also TTC patrons, are looking for someone to blame for their inconvenience.

The most obvious target is the Viva drivers' union, led by the same outspoken president, Bob Kinnear, whose internal political struggles were blamed for a snap weekend TTC strike in April.

There is one significant difference between the two scenarios. Typically, Canadian transit unions deal with public authorities. This time, the ATU is dealing with a private company. Viva drivers work for Veolia Transport, one of four private contractors for the region.

The issues facing Viva are too big to address in a first contract, says Frank Grimaldi, a union executive.

Riding: Newmarket-Aurora

Election 2008

The riding of Newmarket-Aurora is famous for its near-celebrity status MP, Belinda Stronach. She was first elected as a Conservative in 2004 and then re-elected in 2006 after crossing over to the Liberal caucus in 2005; she announced in 2007 she would not seek a third term.

Stronach will continue as the executive vice-chairman of Magna International Inc., a global supplier of automotive parts and systems.

On Oct. 14, Liberal candidate Tim Jones will run in her place in New Market-Aurora, which covers 92 square kilometres, has a population of 121, 924 and 85, 693 eligible voters. ROBYN YOUNG/FOR METRO TORONTO

Tim Jones — Liberal
AGE: 60
PARTY: Liberal
POSITION: Consultant in volunteer sector, past city councillor and mayor of North York

"What seems to happen in this riding is that they seem to pick more the person than the party, so I'm hoping that with the profile that I have and the record that I have of accomplishing and getting results for people in this area, that they'll continue to look at the person as much as they look at the party."

Mike Seaward — NDP
AGE: 57
PARTY: NDP
POSITION: Shipper/receiver

"We used to have a fine manufacturing base in Aurora and New Market and those jobs have been eroded. It's going to take investment and it's going to take a manufacturing strategy put forward in partnership with the federal, provincial and municipal government."

Dorian Baxter
AGE: 58
PARTY: Progressive Canadian Party of Canada
POSITION: Anglican clergyman/teacher

"Stephen Harper wants to be known as the father of de-confederation. Everything he has done has been to undermine the work of Sir John. A Macdonald and to literally pit the provinces against each other."

Glenn Hubbers — Green Party
AGE: 42
PARTY: Green
POSITION: Mechanical engineer

"We need to start addressing the fact that we use more than a planet's worth, multiple times' worth, of resources and energy. And the engineers really are on the forefront of being able to address those issues from the technology point of view.

Ray Luff — CHP
AGE: 48
PARTY: Christian Heritage Party of Canada
POSITION: Semi-retired investor

"We believe our house is not in as much order as Canadians like to believe. We want to know the plan to put in a mortgage to start to pay off the debt in the next 20 to 30 years."

C. difficile online records start today

Ontario will begin public online posting today of hospital rates of infection with the potentially deadly bacterium Clostridium difficile, but critics are already criticizing the new surveillance program as inadequate because the number of deaths won't be included.

The reporting system will initially show how many patients were sickened by C. difficile during the month of August in each of the province's 157 hospitals.

Each institution will be required to provide monthly updates of its case count and rate of infection per 1,000 patient days, to allow comparison of how well centres of a similar size are faring in preventing incursions of the infection and its spread among patients.

Starting next month, hospitals will also be required to report on outbreaks and clusters of C. difficile cases, said Dr. Michael Baker, who is leading the patient safety effort for Ontario's Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care. C. difficile is widespread in the environment, with up to five per cent of the population carrying it without ill-effect. But for some patients, taking certain antibiotics or other drugs can allow the bacterium to flourish in the intestines.

"There are (hospitals) that have probably been struggling with this, and others still that have not taken the steps," Dr. Michael Baker

"There are (hospitals) that have probably been struggling with this, and others still that have not taken the steps," he said.

Milk products pulled from Canadian shelves

Asian supermarkets across Canada are pulling food linked to China's growing tainted-milk scandal, which has killed four infants in that country and left more than 50,000 children sick.

But while other nations are banning products from China, Canadian officials say that would be an overreaction and they're trying to assure customers that Chinese products are safe.

The Canadian Food Inspection Agency is overseeing a voluntary recall of several food products from China that may contain melamine, an industrial chemical that can cause kidney stones and potentially fatal kidney failure.

The agency has also warned against consuming infant formula from China, which isn't approved for sale in Canada but may be imported and sold illegally.

There have been no reported cases of melamine-related illness in Canada. said Garfield Balsom of the food inspection agency.

"Our first approach was to ensure that the infant formula, the products that were directly related to the illnesses in China, were not imported or distributed in Canada," Balsom said yesterday.

Taking action

- The voluntary recall has seen T&T Supermarket, an Asian grocery chain with locations in B.C., Alberta and Ontario, take 20 different products from seven different brands off the shelves.

Ex-judge arrested by Scotland Yard

ARREST A former B.C. Supreme Court justice, who now is a top judge in the Cayman Islands, has been arrested in the wealthy British dependency in connection with a corruption probe, authorities have announced.

Gov. Stuart Jack and British police investigator Martin Bridger released separate statements saying Grand Court Justice Alexander (Ace) Henderson was arrested early Wednesday in connection with the probe by Scotland Yard detectives. He has not been charged with any crime.

Jack, the appointed British governor of the three-island territory, said local rules restrict authorities from releasing details. Henderson's arrest comes about a week after the Cayman Islands announced it suspended another Grand Court judge, Priya Levers, while a tribunal probes allegations of misconduct lodged against her.

U.S. man receives refund, but no cigars

A film critic who entered the United States without declaring thousands of dollars in a cigar box is getting some money back.

Federal prosecutors have agreed to return $5,880 to Elvis Mitchell, nearly half the $12,000 seized by border agents in April. A judge signed the deal this week.

Mitchell was entering Detroit in a cab from Canada when most of the money was discovered in a cigar box.

Mitchell said it was a mistake not to disclose the cash at the Detroit-Windsor tunnel. He claimed to have grabbed the wrong cigar box when he left New York for Toronto on the first leg of his trip.

"If we believed it was from an unlawful source, or intended for an unlawful purpose, we would not have settled the case," Assistant U.S. Attorney Rita Foley said yesterday.

Border officers also seized 15 Cuban cigars, which are illegal to import.

Study says Asians more likely to finish university

Children whose parents immigrated to Canada from Asian or South Asian countries are twice as likely as children of Canadian-born parents to finish university, Statistics Canada says.

The gap is far more than vast than expected, study released this week found.

The study used the 2002 Ethnic Diversity Survey of young adults aged 25 to 34.

Family factors played a major role in determining which children did better, the study also found. Italian and Portuguese immigrant fathers in the survey almost never had university degrees, but 32 per cent of second-generation Italians and 26 per cent of second generation Portuguese did.

Mothers and fathers from the Phillipines had the highest rates of university education and their children's levels were 12 per cent higher than the kids of Canadian-born parents.

Ultrasonic LipiLoss and LipiLossIR (The Science). Available exclusively at Mócelle® Edan, LipiLoss™ is a break-through non-surgical alternative to liposuction which uses proprietary fat-burning micro injections to dissolve and sculpt-away stubborn patches of fat and cellulite (this process is called Infusion LipiLoss). Ultrasonic LipiLoss, like ultra-sound assisted (UAL) liposuction, relies on the use of ultrasound to assist in the LipiLoss process. LipiLossIR is the use of infrared technology during Infusion LipiLoss to extra-corporally dissolve unwanted fat at the cellular level. Ultrasonic LipiLoss and LipiLossIR operates in much the same way ultrasound / light-energy is used to breakdown and flush kidney stones out of the body without making surgical incisions. LipiLoss is used to dissolve fat and cellulite in the following areas: Thighs, Love handles, Hips, Double chins, Tummy and any other area with unwanted fat.

LipiLoss vs. Liposuction. Unlike Liposuction, LipiLoss does not involve the making of surgical incisions, there is no bandages and no anaesthesia. LipiLoss is effective for treating cellulite as well as fat, whearas liposuction is not effective for cellulite treatment. LipiLoss is effective in treating small areas of adipose / fat accumulation; persons who have larger areas of fat to remove will typically obtain better results from surgical liposuction. Like liposuction, LipiLoss is not a weight-loss procedure and neither is a substitute for diet and exercise – the success of both LipiLoss and liposuction are generally best measured in inches lost (not pounds lost). LipiLoss takes place over a series of treatments and there is no down time – you are able to return to your normal activities immediately after each procedure.

Superior to Mesotherapy! Proprietary LipiLoss is a stabilized formulation developed based on the results of clinical studies and uses Health Canada and FDA-approved medical devices. This stabilized formulation is the foundation of LipiLoss' superiority over mesotherapy and other infusion protocols. Unlike LipiLoss, mesotherapy has no consistency in its formulation and therefore no consistency in its results. LipiLoss works! And Mócelle® Edan is it's exclusive authorized provider.

Radwanski spent for good: Defence

Former privacy commissioner George Radwanski made errors and may have been "haughty" with employees, but his lavish hospitality spending and expense transactions did not amount to criminal acts, his lawyer argued yesterday.

Michael Crystal painted Radwanski as a hard-working defender of Canadian citizens in the wake of the 2001 terrorist attacks in the United States — a time when a "juggernaut" of U.S. security measures was steamrolling over privacy rights on both sides of the border.

He cited a graph, introduced by the Crown prosecutor to illustrate just how often Radwanski went for long, lavish lunches with a top aide, to instead bolster his theory by pointing out how the frequency of the meals spiked sharply after Sept. 11, 2001.

Despite his faults and bad judgment, the former privacy commissioner turned a "sleepy office deep within the bureaucracy" into a champion of human rights following the earth-shaking events of 9/11, Crystal told Radwanski's fraud trial.

"No one — no one — has ever taken issue with Mr. Radwanski's work."
Michael Crystal

"No one — no one — has ever taken issue with Mr. Radwanski's work," Crystal said as the high-profile trial entered its final arguments.

They also increased as Radwanski began dealing with new Canadian privacy law that was taking hold at the same time, he noted.

A $15,000 loan Radwanski took out from Lamarche to pay down the advance is at the centre of the fraud allegations.

The court heard that Radwanski promptly repaid it the next month with the second advance.

Mission extended for more Somalia aid

ASSISTANCE A Canadian navy frigate will spend an extra few weeks on its current mission of helping to secure the delivery of humanitarian aid to Somalia.

HMCS Ville de Quebec was assigned Aug. 6 to escort civilian vessels carrying food from Kenya to Somalia through waters notorious for piracy.

The Defence Department says the Halifax-based frigate's mission was originally set to end Sept. 27. But it has been extended to no later than Oct. 23.

The move will allow the UN-led aid program more time to secure a replacement naval escort.

So far, 22,000 tonnes of corn and soy meal — enough to feed more than 145,000 people for a year — has been delivered by ships escorted by Ville de Quebec. NATO warships have been escorting the food shipments since 2007.

Dion takes PM to task on economy

TURMOIL Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion has a message for the prime minister: It's the economy, Stephen.

Dion yesterday launched a vigorous attack against Harper's "incompetence" on the economy, charging that the Conservative government has been blind to the financial turmoil in the United States.

Dion jumped on the stark warning delivered by U.S. President George W. Bush Wednesday night as proof that Wall Street's dramatic financial woes will spill over into Canada.

"Today, Mr. Harper is perhaps the only Canadian who seems to ignore what is happening in the United States, our largest trading partner," Dion said in a lunch speech to the Quebec Chamber of Commerce.

"This is the height of irresponsibility."

Time to speak out

Elizabeth May says environmental groups being muzzled

Green party Leader Elizabeth May says Canada's leading environmental groups are being silenced during the federal election because some fear retribution from a new Stephen Harper government and others are stymied by federal rules.

During a meeting with the Toronto Star's editorial board yesterday, May said there has never been a more important time for public debate on the environment.

Not only are voters deeply interested in green issues, she said, but the next government will leave its imprint on the future of greenhouse gas emissions when world leaders converge in Copenhagen next year for their final meeting before the Kyoto Protocol runs out in 2012.

"That is why I went into politics, because every group in this country is being muzzled at the very time that they need to get their voices raised the loudest," said May, who ran the Sierra Club of Canada until becoming Green party leader in 2006.

"What a crime it is that David Suzuki can't say a thing in an election campaign because the Suzuki Foundation will lose its charitable status. This is appalling."

Green party Leader Elizabeth May makes a point yesterday during a Toronto Star editorial board meeting. May said this is an important time for public debate on the environment.

"That is why I went into politics, because every group in this country is being muzzled at the very time that they need to get their voices raised the loudest."
Elizabeth May

May said two issues are at play:

- Fear among many environmentalists that the Conservatives, if re-elected, will cut funding or deny meetings with political leaders to groups that were openly critical during the campaign. May said the B.C. chapter of the outspoken Sierra Club felt a political sting late last month when a signed government contract for a local climate-change action program was unexpectedly cut by the Environment Ministry.
- Groups registered as charities fear they will face audits that could lead to a loss of their status if they speak out because Canada Revenue Agency rules prohibit charities from partisan political action during an election. These rules apply to all charities, not just environmental groups.

Tories put women at risk: Group

ABORTION The Conservative government is eroding women's reproductive health and right to abortion "by stealth," a group of advocates representing labour and women's rights charged yesterday morning.

"There is a clear anti-abortion hidden agenda at work that puts women's health at risk," said Carolyn Egan of the Abortion Rights Coalition of Canada.

At a news conference, the groups representing the Canadian Labour Congress, the Quebec Federation for Family Planning and the Ottawa Coalition to End Violence Against Women called on all individual candidates and party leaders to clearly state their views, and their political intentions, challenging them to oppose any moves to extend "personhood" or legal rights to fetuses.

They did not limit their criticism to the Conservatives, but reserved especially harsh comments for the government after its announcement in August that it would bring forward a bill this fall to allow harsher penalties for offenders who cause injury or death to a fetus during an assault on a pregnant woman. PM plans to outlaw web spam

In an appeal for support from consumers annoyed by high gas prices and computer spam, Prime Minister Stephen Harper says if re-elected he would move to curb Internet abuses, outlaw charges for unsolicited commercial text messages and send inspectors to check the accuracy of gas pumps.

"Whether it's spam, price fixing, gas-pump tampering or anti-competitive behaviour more generally, Canadian consumers expect their governments to take action and achieve results," the Conservative leader said.

Reversing the stance taken by Industry Minister Jim Prentice last month, Harper said a Tory government would prevent telecom companies from charging fees to customers for receiving unsolicited commercial text messages.

Highlights of the week's election campaign from Metro newsrooms across the nation

TORONTO

The Conservatives took a PR hit early this week when their ex-candidate for Toronto Centre, Chris Reid, resigned after comments on his blog, calling for the legalization of concealed handguns, became public. Not the smartest move for someone who was courting the vote of constituents who haven't forgotten the fatal January shooting outside of local strip club Brass Rail. Some of Canada's most recognizable stars gathered in The Big Smoke Wednesday to tout homegrown arts and answer Harper's insinuation that the nation's artists are elitist, free-loading whiners. The cast included actors Colm Feore, Gordon Pinsent and Wendy Crewson, who argued the arts provide 1.1 million jobs and $86 billion to the gross domestic product. "Stephen, the arts is the economy, stupid," said Karl Pruner, president of ACTRA.

HALIFAX

The biggest election news in Halifax this week was about a former candidate. Rosamond Luke, who was a hand-picked Conservative candidate for the NDP stronghold of Halifax for just two days, was accused of financial mismanagement by the women's organization she helped found. Board members say Luke, who made $60,000 a year, wrote $85,000 in unapproved cheques that she couldn't back up. Luke resigned as the candidate after a criminal conviction came to light.

MONTREAL

It was a pretty quiet week in Montreal. But one topic was on everyone's lips — culture. Quebec artists don't appreciate the Conservative party's cuts to the arts. On Tuesday, a dozen singers, actors and other artists presented a free show in town to denounce the $45 million in cuts, mostly in programs promoting culture abroad. A video on YouTube, La culture en péril, has been viewed almost 500,000 times and the Liberals, Bloc and NDP have attacked Stephen Harper on that topic all week long.

OTTAWA

On Monday, the Conservatives chose the Ottawa-Vanier riding — a downtown district that has been struggling with youth-related crime — to announce they would toughen the Youth Criminal Justice Act and increase the budget of the Youth Gang Prevention Fund to $10 million per year. NDP Leader Jack Layton continued his Quebec charm offensive in Gatineau last week, campaigning on the Quebec-side of the national capital for the third time since the election was called. Conservative candidate Brian McGarry, who has lost more than 100 signs to vandals or thieves since the election call, formally complained to police this week after witnesses claimed to have spotted two people remove a Tory sign and replace it with a Liberal sign. The Liberals denied the allegations, saying they were shocked by it. All parties have complained of vandalism and stolen signs in the riding.

CALGARY

Calgary Centre Conservative incumbent Lee Richardson took his moment in the spotlight of controversy after connecting immigration with a rising crime rate, spurring calls from competing candidates for his resignation. Liberal Leader Stéphane Dion made his first appearance of the campaign in Calgary at a town hall meeting Monday night, shooting down an offer from NDP Leader Jack Layton to form a coalition in order to guarantee the ousting of Conservatives from power.

VANCOUVER

It was another wacky week out West as a third NDP candidate dropped out of the race, while old blogs came back to haunt one of the Tories. Julian West, candidate for Saanich-Gulf Islands, quit after admitting to skinny-dipping in front of minors during an environmental conference 12 years ago. Two other NDP hopefuls had already dropped out because of past pro-marijuana endorsements. Conservative Ryan Warawa, who's still in the running in Vancouver-East, allegedly supports the legalization of pot and prostitution in brothels, according to a series of 2004 blogs that resurfaced recently. A spokesperson for the party acknowledged the posts on Tuesday and said that Warawa now supports the party's platform. Warawa didn't speak for himself and neither did another Conservative candidate, Dona Cadman, who was shielded by the RCMP from answering reporters' questions on Tuesday night. This led to accusations by the Liberals that the Mounties were used as a "political tool."

News in brief

QUEBEC A jump in support for the Bloc Québécois in recent opinion polls can be attributed to concerns in Quebec about the possibility of a majority Conservative government, says a senior pollster. A Canadian Press Harris-Decima survey conducted Sept. 21-24 suggested Bloc support stood at 39 per cent, compared with 23 per cent for the Tories, 17 per cent for the Liberals and 12 per cent for the NDP. The survey of 307 Quebecers has a margin of error of 5.5 percentage points, 19 times out of 20, and is part of a rolling poll of 1,243 Canadians across the country.

Debate still up in the air

McCain says his priority is securing financial bailout

Republican John McCain's campaign expressed cautious optimism yesterday as congressional leaders agreed in principle on a $700-billion US bailout of the financial industry before the two presidential candidates were to meet President George W. Bush.

Even so, the development didn't appear strong enough to convince McCain to attend today's scheduled presidential debate with Barack Obama, his Democratic rival.

McCain's campaign has said he wouldn't participate unless there was consensus between Congress and the administration, and a spokesman said the yesterday afternoon developments had not changed his plans.

"There's no deal until there's a deal. We're optimistic but we want to get this thing done," McCain spokesman Brian Rogers said.

Obama still wants the face-off to go on, and is slated to travel to the debate site in Mississippi.

The debate over the debate is the latest campaign twist as McCain and Obama try to navigate the uncharted politics of the financial meltdown and show leadership at a time of national angst.

"With so much on the line ... the debate that matters most right now is taking place in the United States Capitol — and I intend to join it," McCain said yesterday.

Obama argued the debate should proceed because a president needs to be able to handle more than one issue at a time.

In Oxford, Miss., debate organizers continued to prepare. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Palin granted extension to prepare personal finances

POLITICS Sarah Palin has received an extension of the deadline for disclosing her personal finances and now won't have to report until the day after her only debate with Democratic vice-presidential nominee Joe Biden.

The Republican vice-presidential candidate received a four-day extension yesterday from the U.S. Federal Election Commission. The federal financial disclosure report was initially due next Monday. Now Palin has until Oct. 3.

Earlier this month, Biden released a decade of personal financial records that showed he earned less than many of his congressional colleagues.

Reports a must

- Presidential, vice-presidential and congressional candidates must all file ethics reports outlining their assets and liabilities. That includes such things as sources of income, real estate held for investment purposes, stocks and debt.

Trevor Potter, general counsel for the McCain-Palin campaign, told the FEC that the campaign initially thought it had until Oct. 4 to file the report, but then learned the FEC set an earlier due date, necessitating an extension.

David Letterman unloads on McCain for not showing up

TELEVISION Late Show host David Letterman treated John McCain's decision to cancel an appearance on his talk show more like a stupid human trick than the act of a statesman.

The Republican presidential candidate said he was halting his campaign activities Wednesday, citing the need to deal with the nation's financial crisis, and called Letterman to drop out of the show's late-night lineup. On the air Wednesday night, Letterman assailed McCain's rationale and questioned whether the nominee — now trailing in some polls — was in trouble.

"This doesn't smell right," Letterman said. "This is not the way a tested hero behaves. Somebody's putting something in his Metamucil."

U.S., Pakistani troops trade gunfire at border

Pakistani soldiers fired at American reconnaissance helicopters that were escorting Afghan and U.S. ground troops along the volatile border yesterday, sparking a ground battle between the American and Pakistani soldiers, officials said.

Attempting to downplay the incident, Pakistan's president said only "flares" were fired.

But the five-minute exchange could heighten tensions at a time when the United States is stepping up cross-border operations in a region known as a haven for Taliban and al Qaeda militants.

Two American OH-58 reconnaissance helicopters were on a routine afternoon patrol in the eastern province of Khost when they received small-arms fire from the Pakistani border post, said Tech Sgt. Kevin Wallace. There was no damage to aircraft or crew, officials said.

When fired on, the U.S. ground forces fired rounds meant not to hit the Pakistanis, but "to make certain that they realized they should stop shooting," Smith said.

The Pakistani military disputed the U.S. version, saying its troops fired warning shots when the two helicopters crossed over the border and that the U.S. helicopters fired back. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China puts 3 astronauts in orbit

Mission scheduled to include country's first spacewalk

A three-man crew was launched into orbit yesterday on what promises to be China's most challenging mission since sending its first astronaut aloft in 2003: A mission scheduled to include the country's first spacewalk.

The Shenzhou 7 spacecraft carrying the country's third manned mission blasted off from northwest China under clear night skies atop a Long March 2F rocket.

The spacewalk by one of the astronauts is expected to take place either today or tomorrow.

Underscoring the mission's heavy political overtones, Chinese President Hu Jintao made an appearance live on state television, hailing the astronauts at the launch site near the northwestern town of Jiuquan.

"You will definitely accomplish this glorious and sacred mission. The motherland and the people are looking forward to your triumphant return," Hu told Zhai Zhigang, Jing Haipeng and Liu Boming, all 42.

> "You will definitely accomplish this glorious and sacred mission. The motherland and the people are looking forward to your triumphant return."

The mission is expected to last three to four days, with the spacewalk likely to take about 40 minutes.

The spacewalk is expected to help China master the technology for docking two orbiters, a necessary step to create China's first orbiting space station in the next few years.

Chinese tainted milk sickens lion cub, baby orangutans at Shanghai-area zoo

ILLNESS A lion cub and two baby orangutans have developed kidney stones at a zoo near Shanghai, making them the latest victims of China's tainted milk crisis.

Veterinarian Zhang Xu at the Hangzhou Zhangxu Animal Hospital says the three animals had been nursed with milk powder for more than a year.

The powder was made by the Sanlu Group Co., which is at the centre of the tainted milk crisis.

The industrial chemical melamine has been found in a growing range of Chinese-made dairy products, and it has been blamed for sickening 54,000 infants in China and killing four.

The orangutans and lion cub at the Hangzhou Safari Park near Shanghai were found with kidney stones Wednesday after concerned officials sent them to Zhang for a checkup.

Ju Lijia, the animal park's public affairs manager, said the three animals were the only ones found with kidney stones.

"The milk-powder crisis made us very worried about the health situation of baby animals," Ju said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "We stopped feeding with Sanlu after it was found to be tainted."

Carney soothes fears

Says Canada well placed to weather crisis

Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney yesterday sought to reassure Canadians that, though there will be ripple effects, Canada's financial system is well positioned to weather the economic crisis in the U.S.

"Canadian institutions are in considerably better shape than their international peers." Mark Carney

"Canadian institutions are in considerably better shape than their international peers," Carney said.

The reason is that while banks elsewhere have been experiencing an increased need for capital, they have been unable to sufficiently raise it.

"The stronger financial position of Canadian banks," Carney explained, "means that they now borrow at rates considerably lower" than their peers.

"We are experiencing the inevitable correction of a period of unbalanced growth," he said, counting off the problems: debt, rapid credit expansion and price booms in western economies.

TD raises mortgage rates

MARKET Mortgage rates in Canada are heading higher as fears of inflation resonate through the bond market as U.S. legislators move towards agreement on a $700 billion US bail-out plan for Wall Street.

TD Canada Trust said late yesterday it has raised its mortgage rates by more than a third of a percentage point on three, four and five-year loans.

The changes reflect the rising cost of borrowing in the bond market where banks finance their mortgage lending.

Effective today, a five-year mortgage increases by .35 of a percentage point to 7.2 per cent, while a three-year closed term rises to 7.05 per cent.

Luxury homes tank

Sales in Toronto area drop 5% over last year

Luxury home sales in the Toronto area have fallen for the first time in more than a decade, and the economic meltdown in financial markets means there could be a further contraction in coming months, says a report.

There were 487 sales of luxury homes (defined as properties costing $1.5 million or more) in the Toronto area according to ReMax in its annual look at luxury sales, a drop of 5 per cent from the same seven-month period a year ago.

This is the first time that luxury home sales have fallen since 1997. The snapshot was taken before the financial services collapse on Wall Street last week, suggesting there is more pain ahead.

"Housing sales have slowed considerably from last year's hectic pace," ReMax reported. "Traditional strongholds such as Forest Hill, Hogg's Hollow, Bridle Path, St. Andrews and Lawrence Park have experienced a noticeable decrease in sale activity this year."

Inventory levels also climbed, with 500 properties listed in Toronto in the $1.5 million plus range, giving buyers a lot more to choose from. Though sales are down, average prices have been relatively flat. Average sale prices for all types of property in Toronto dipped by 1 per cent for the first time in more than a decade last month.

Hotdogs prompt bomb scare

After a bomb scare at the Philadelphia Phillies' ballpark, authorities pointed the finger at a fuzzy green suspect —The Phillie Phanatic. Hours before the Phillies-Atlanta Braves' game on Wednesday night, a film crew shot a commercial of the mascot shooting heavily wrapped hotdogs from a launcher. But someone inadvertently left three of the duct-taped hotdogs outside the ballpark, sparking security fears. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doc reaches 20 wins

Halladay shines to lead Blue Jays past Yankees

Blue Jays 8 Yankees 2

The Yankees, who beat Roy Halladay 3-2 in this season's opener but were trimmed four times since by the good Doctor, certainly seemed up for the occasion. At least they did until Vernon Wells and company crammed seven runs into the third, fourth and fifth, as the Jays beat the Yankees 8-2 last night at the Rogers Centre.

Brett Gardner, for instance, singled off Halladay's third pitch of the night but was promptly dispatched in a double play.

In the second, Jason Giambi slapped a one-out double into the left-field corner to pose a threat but died at third on a couple of groundouts.

In the third, the New Yorkers finally connected for one on Gardner's two-out double into the right corner and a run-scoring single by Robinson Cano.

That lead held for about six or seven minutes, when Wells unloaded into the Toronto bullpen for No. 18. Aboard with a two-out single was Alex Rios.

The two RBIs gave Wells 71 on the year and 652 for his career, one more than Lloyd Moseby for fourth place on the franchise's all-time chart.

The bases-loaded, two-run single he used to chase Yankees starter Carl Pavano an inning later got him to within 73 of Joe Carter for third.

It also gave the Jays a 5-1 lead, the first score of that three-run third coming around on successive one-out singles by Travis Snider, Gregg Zaun and Joe Inglett.

When Halladay let a second Yankee run slip across in the fifth, the offence assured their big guy that things were going to be fine by responding immediately.

Back-to-back doubles by Snider and Zaun did the delivering there.

Toronto Blue Jays starting pitcher Roy Halladay threw a complete game to defeat the New York Yankees 8-2 at the Rogers Centre last night. The win was Halladay's 20th of the season.

Jays reward Gaston with a two-year deal

MLB Cito Gaston didn't quite manage to save the Toronto Blue Jays this year, but he did help prevent a season speeding dangerously toward train-wreck territory from ending in total disaster.

With his trademark calm demeanour and steady hand, he helped salvage a campaign of high expectations when all seemed lost, even briefly leading his club to the outer fringes of contention.

For that, Gaston was rewarded with a two-year contract extension yesterday that runs through 2010. Eleven years plus one day to the day he was fired as Blue Jays manager in 1997, he can finish making the team he took over from John Gibbons on June 20 truly his own.

"Somewhat," Gaston said when asked if he felt the Blue Jays were starting to bear his trademarks, "but we still have some ways to go, there are some things I'd like to see done differently."

Completion of the transformation will come next spring training, when the obvious focus will be on continuing to make offensive strides with a lineup that has underachieved the past two seasons. Alex Rios, Lyle Overbay and Scott Rolen all had down years at the plate while injuries kept Vernon Wells and Aaron Hill from fully hitting their stride.

All must provide pop next season, along with youngsters Adam Lind and Travis Snider, for the Blue Jays to keep on winning.

"The one thing we need to do is get back to where guys hit 20 to 25 home runs," said Gaston. "If you don't manufacture runs, then you've got to hit home runs." THE CANADIAN PRESS

MONSTER MUSEUMS AND EXCITING EXHIBITIONS

VISIT LONDON
VISITLONDON.COM
Upgrade to BRITISH AIRWAYS

If you're looking for art and culture on your trip to London, you'll be spoilt for choice! And with so many attractions, museums and galleries free to enter, you'll be able to visit them all! Londoners Marie and Brian share their favorite London experiences with you.

Marie

MY LONDON

"Being in London means we have lots of choices about what to do"

As a mom to three kids under 12, my weekends are always an adventure, and being in London means we have lots of choices about what to do.

A favorite haunt of the boys is the Natural History Museum - they just love those dinosaurs! When they've got their fill of bones and other wonders of the natural world, we'll head over to the Science Museum. There are so many interactive exhibits, it's easy to lose track of time.

My daughter is the youngest and she's an animal lover. We've got an annual pass for ZSL London Zoo and often pack up a picnic and head over for the day. She especially likes the monkey walk where she can get up close to the little creatures. I really enjoy the walk through Regents Park - there are some lovely spots to sit and enjoy the beautiful flower displays and maybe even spot a few celebrities.

After an action-packed day, we like to head out for dinner together, but with such a large family we keep an eye on the budget. Like most locals, we've got a few tricks up our sleeve! One of our favorites is Masala Zone, a small chain of restaurants serving great Indian food that doesn't stretch our wallets!

Brian

MY LONDON

One of my favorite things about London is that there is so much to see and do. Whether it's the mix of historic and contemporary buildings or the fusion of cultures, it's really a world in one city.

If I had to name one attraction that represents London, I would say the Tate Modern; a contemporary art gallery in an old power station which is right on the banks of the river. Afterward, I really enjoy walking over Millennium Bridge towards St Paul's Cathedral and into the city's business district.

I like to visit unusual attractions and exhibitions and I'm looking forward to visiting the Ripley's Believe it or Not! Museum. It opened this summer and I've heard it's great fun.

Take a tip from a local and explore some of London's smaller museums too. The Geffrye Museum in East London follows the history of interior design. It's great to compare century old rooms to more modern time designs.

The Museum in Docklands, near Canary Wharf, also has some interesting, and less traditional, exhibitions. At the moment, you can find out all about Jack the Ripper and what life was like in the East End during the late 1800s. There's so much going on, you certainly won't be short of things to do this fall.

For great savings, I recommend changing dollars (commission free) at Thomas Cook foreign exchange branches around London. All you need is a voucher that is downloadable from visitlondon.com.

You will also get £100 worth of vouchers for discounts at lots of theaters and attractions across the city. Its just another way to save money on visiting London!

Expect Oilers to contend

The youth movement in Edmonton is about to pan out

YorkReport

Marty York
marty.york@metronews.ca

No NHL squad enters this season with a more impressive blend of experience and young talent than the Edmonton Oilers, which is why many shrewd hockey followers figure they will:

- Challenge for a division title.
- Emerge as the league's most improved team.
- Establish themselves as the top contenders in Western Canada.

The Oilers, in fact, are in the upper echelon of teams likely to capture the Stanley Cup this season, according to the latest odds. Oddsmakers are rating the Oilers as 20-to-1 possibilities for NHL supremacy. They were 100-to-1 longshots at this time last year.

Canadian teams below the Oilers on the oddsmakers' list these days are the Ottawa Senators (22-to-1), the Calgary Flames (25-to-1), the Vancouver Canucks (44-to-1) and the Toronto Maple Leafs (100-to-1).

The Montreal Canadiens are among the NHL's favourites, at 8-to-1. The Pittsburgh Penguins also are at 8-to-1, while the Detroit Red Wings are favoured to repeat as champions, at 7-to-2.

- The Oilers hope to add a quality defenceman and are dangling veteran goaltender Dwayne Roloson as trade bait. Mathieu Garon will be Edmonton's starting netminder … The St. Louis Blues covet veteran Brendan Shanahan, who hasn't received a contract offer to re-sign with the New York Rangers … Ottawa shot-callers speak daily to representatives of Mats Sundin. They're in relentless pursuit of the Swedish veteran … Forward Ryan Malone can't get over his departure from the Pens. "Being from Pittsburgh," he said, "you have a lot of pride pulling that jersey on. To not get a serious offer from them was so weird." Malone is with Tampa Bay this season … Malone's new Lightning coach, Barry Melrose, has been replaced as ESPN's hockey analyst by ex-NHL pest Matthew Barnaby.
- If J.P. Ricciardi returns as Blue Jays general manager next season — and that's more likely now than it was a month ago — he'll go hard after Rafael Furcal, who will be a free agent after his injury-plagued season with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Ricciardi's top two priorities: A productive shortstop and leadoff hitter. Furcal could be both.

- The Washington Post reports Chicago pitcher Ryan Dempster is living out "The American Dream" as he walks four blocks daily to Wrigley Field for home games and pitches in a baseball-mad city where the Cubs have a shot at winning their first World Series title in 100 years.

Thing is, Dempster is Canadian. He's from B.C., and, before next season, he wouldn't mind signing as a free agent with the Jays.

Canadian on cycling podium for first time since 1984

A flat tire couldn't prevent Svein Tuft from racing to the podium at the road cycling world championships yesterday.

The Canadian flatted with six kilometres to go but rather than waste time putting on a new wheel, he quickly switched his aerodynamic time trial bike for a less efficient road bike and rode to a silver medal in the men's time trial.

It was Canada's first medal at the world championship in nearly two decades.

The 31-year-old Tuft finished 42.79 seconds behind Bert Grabsch of Germany in sunny conditions on the 43.7-kilometre course near Lake Varese. American David Zabriskie took the bronze.

Satisfied with the silver, Tuft wasn't interested in thinking about what might have been had he not had the flat.

"You can never know about that sort of thing," said Tuft, a native of Langley, B.C. "I think I went through one of the corners a little hot, and then in the next corner I could feel the bike squirming around. We had a quick change, so didn't lose much time, and that (speculation) is the sort of thing you can't guess about."

Tuft, who finished seventh in the time trial at the Summer Olympics last month, is the first Canadian to make the podium at the event since Steve Bauer won bronze in 1984 in Barcelona.

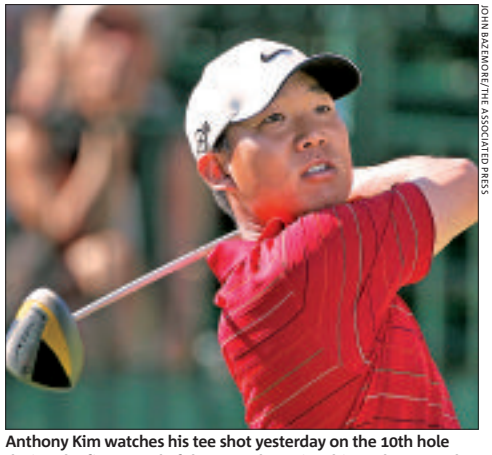
No Ryder Cup hangover for Anthony Kim



JOHN BAZEMORE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Anthony Kim watches his tee shot yesterday on the 10th hole during the first round of the Tour Championship at the East Lake Golf Club in Atlanta. Kim shot a 6-under 64 in his Tour Championship debut.

PGA Four days after Anthony Kim humbled Sergio Garcia in the Ryder Cup, he beat 29 players just as badly yesterday at the Tour Championship.

Showing no effects of a Ryder Cup hangover, Kim fired off eight birdies on his way to a 6-under 64 in his Tour Championship debut to build a four-shot lead over Masters champion Trevor Immelman, Ernie Els and Phil Mickelson.

Kim and the other nine Americans from the winning team rarely got through a hole without hearing someone in the gallery congratulate them on their 16½-11½ victory over Europe on Sunday.

Kim was smiling just as wide as he did yesterday.

"I feel like when I'm happy, having a good time, I'm going to make some birdies," he said. "So it was a good vibe out there."

Good thing the 23-year-old Kim had four days to try to get the Ryder Cup out of his system.

He was the life of the party Sunday night, especially after his 5-and-4 victory over Garcia in which Kim made birdie or better on six of his 14 holes.

"Just trying to enjoy the moment," he said. "This Ryder Cup hangover doesn't feel as bad as a college hangover."

Mike Weir of Bright's Grove, Ont., was tied for sixth after shooting a 70.

NFL WEEK 4

Veteran QBs take the stage

Kerry Collins, 35, who has stabilized the Titans as Vince Young's not-so-temporary replacement, meets his adversary, 37-year-old Gus Ferotte, who led the Vikings to their first victory over Carolina.

Open dates: Detroit, Indianapolis, Miami, New England, N.Y. Giants, Seattle

Denver at Kansas City
(3-0) (0-3)
Denver's D, which has allowed 28 points a game, might get a break this week against a team averaging just over 10 points. Chiefs' Damon Huard starts at QB.

San Francisco at New Orleans
(2-1) (1-2)
Saints are without two top offensive weapons – TE Jeremy Shockey joins WR Marques Colston on the injury list. Niners look to win three straight.

San Diego at Oakland
(1-2) (1-2)
The Chargers looked like one of AFC's best against the Jets Monday night. Raiders' coach Lane Kiffin waits for Al Davis to swing the ax.

Buffalo at St. Louis
(3-0) (0-3)
Trent Green starts at quarterback for Rams in place of Marc Bulger. Bills are getting solid QB play from 24-year-old Trent Edwards in his second year.

Atlanta at Carolina
(2-1) (2-1)
Falcons' John Abraham leads the NFL in sacks with six, so this could be a more dangerous game for Carolina than it looks.

Arizona at N.Y. Jets
(2-1) (1-2)
Brett Favre starts 257th straight game, but Jets' new QB has a sore ankle that could limit him. The Cardinals are 2-15 in the Eastern time zone since 2003.

Washington at Dallas
(2-1) (3-0)
This game reflects the strength of the NFC East, which is 10-2 overall with the two losses in division games. Skins' Jason Taylor is out with a calf injury.

Cleveland at Cincinnati
(0-3) (0-3)
Derek Anderson is still the QB for Cleveland while Brady Quinn gets ready. Bengals played decently last week, losing to the Giants 26-23 in OT on the road.

Green Bay at Tampa Bay
(2-1) (2-1)
An intense rivalry from the old NFC Central. Bucs provide a pretty good test for Pack QB Aaron Rodgers, a tougher road game than his first in Detroit.

Philadelphia at Chicago
(2-1) (1-2)
Eagles looked like 1985 Bears last week, sacking Steelers QBs nine times in a 15-6 win. Bears limited the Bucs to 47 yards rushing in their 27-24 OT loss.

Houston at Jacksonville
(0-2) (1-2)
Texans QB Matt Schaub has thrown five INTs and has a passer rating of 50.3 in two games. Jags win when they run and lose when they don't.

Minnesota at Tennessee
(1-2) (3-0)
The Titans' 29 points allowed are the second fewest in the league. Sustaining drives and scoring won't be easy for Vikings.

Baltimore at Pittsburgh (Mon.)
(2-0) (2-1)
Steelers' Ben Roethlisberger has shoulder and hand injuries. Ravens allowed just 20 points in wins over Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Calderon injury free

Bosh and Jose show off new Raptor jerseys, medals

There was time for family and friends, with movies to see and dinners to enjoy.

There was time to bask in Olympic glory, time to relax and soak it all in.

Time that has been foreign to Jose Calderon for more than a decade.

After another summer of high-intensity basketball, training and playing and winning an Olympic medal, the 26-year-old Raptors point guard finally enjoyed some down time.

"After (the Beijing Olympics) I went back to Spain for two weeks," Calderon said yesterday. "I was working out in the morning but it was like a vacation. Just rest, be with friends and family ..... it was nice."

Calderon and Chris Bosh were in town yesterday to unveil Toronto's new third jersey, an all-black look the team will wear about 10 times this coming season.

The break will come in handy for Calderon, because his workload in the coming season will increase.

RICK MADONIK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Toronto Raptors Chris Bosh and Jose Calderon model the newest version of the Raptor uniform. Additionally, both had their Olympic medals with them, Bosh his Gold and Calderon his Silver.

With the departure of T.J. Ford to Indiana in the Jermaine O'Neal trade, and the uncertain prospects of rookie Roko Ukic and Will Solomon, an unproven free agent signed out of Europe as the primary backups, Calderon will be asked to carry a heavier load. Part of Calderon's shortened off-season was spent dealing with a minor groin injury. But even with regular treatment, it was still time to take time off.

"I feel normal," he said. "I feel 100 per cent, no pain at all, perfect for the training camp."

Bosh and Calderon, aside from showing off the new uniforms — which the Raptors will wear at home on opening night Oct. 31 — had their Olympic medals on display at yesterday's unveiling.

The unlucky lucky ones

The Lucky Ones
Director: Neil Burger
Stars: Rachel McAdams, Tim Robbins, Michael Pena
Classification: 14A
Rating:

"The Lucky Ones is The Best Years of Our Lives reconceived as a sit-com."

KEVIN COURRIER
for Metro Canada

Many of the Iraq War movies of the last few years, both good (Redacted) and bad (In the Valley of Elah), have been angry, anti-war arguments.

Given the unpopularity of the war, the reaction isn't surprising. But Neil Burger, the director of The Illusionist, takes a different turn in The Lucky Ones.

Instead of an incendiary drama about returning vets desperately trying to fit back into normal life, the picture deals with troops coming home in a bland and conventionally life-affirming manner.

Using William Wyler's classic 1946 drama The Best Years of Our Lives — about WWII vets facing difficulties coming home — as his model, Burger unfortunately simplifies the conflicts.

The Lucky Ones is The Best Years of Our Lives reconceived as a sitcom.

The story focuses on three soldiers: T.K. (Michael Pena), wounded by shrapnel in the groin; Cheever (Tim Robbins) returning home to a broken family; and Colee (Rachel McAdams) who sets out to return her boyfriend's guitar back to his family after he dies saving her life.

Although Burger tries to show how these soldiers are returning to heal both physical — and emotional – wounds, every plot point (including T.K's impotence) becomes a metaphor alert.

Michael Pena and Rachel McAdams play soldiers returning from the Iraq War in The Lucky Ones.

The hardships encountered on their travels, from St. Louis to Las Vegas, become tired episodes of character building.

In The Illusionist, Burger told a satisfyingly, old-fashioned story about the illusiveness of magic because he turned the clichés of the genre into elegant tricks. But The Lucky Ones, relying on cheap and easy ironies, takes the road to recovery with highly predictable results.

Spike Lee searching for a screen miracle

Miracle at St. Anna
Director: Spike Lee
Stars: Derek Luke, Michael Ealy, Laz Alonso
Classification: 18A
Rating:

RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

A quartet of black GIs are cut off from their unit behind enemy lines in Spike Lee's new film.

REVIEW It's hard to pick out a film with Spike Lee's name on it that wasn't controversial, but the director got off to an early start this time by provoking a word war with Clint Eastwood; accusing the director of two films about Iwo Jima of being racist for not depicting black soldiers onscreen.

Lee's latest film is doubtless the sort of thing he was suggesting Eastwood should have made, and it's loaded more than enough for Lee's critics and fans to fight about in weeks to come.

Using a real-life massacre of innocent civilians by German troops as his inspiration, Lee's film follows a quartet of black GIs who are cut off from their unit behind enemy lines.

They rely on a remote village to hide them, and the wounded and traumatized little boy one of them has adopted, while their commanding officer demands that they bring back a captured German to confirm an imminent attack.

Like any war film, the men inhabit distinct character types — you might even call them clichés if you wished to be unkind. There's the dutiful and conscientious leader (Derek Luke), the cynical badass (Michael Early), the religious everyman (Laz Alonso) and the child-like giant (Oman Benson Miller).

The Italians they encounter are just as archetypical, from the smoldering village hottie (Valentina Cervi) to the guilt-haunted partisan leader, and the crusty old Fascist with a heart of gold.

Lee has clearly been studying his war films, and there are shots and whole scenes that evoke precedents from Von Ryan's Express to The Big Red One, but the film has a looseness and disjointed continuity that suggest a drastic editing down that is only partly mitigated by its lunge into the fantastical at the end.

Despite his habitual contentiousness, Lee is still a marvelous craftsman, and when something works it really works, though not enough to make Miracle At St. Anna anything like an unqualified success.

Moore not sure what the big deal is

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

FEATURE Julianne Moore doesn't really know what the big deal is. Her latest film Blindness — it opens next Friday — has been getting noticed for its audacious look at humanity's breakdown during times of crisis.

Sure, it includes some shocking moments — like a scene where a group of seemingly civilized women hand over sex for food — but as the four-time Oscar-nominated actress wonders: What's the big surprise?

"People have been horrified by the rape scenes but that's routine in war times," says Moore during a recent interview in Toronto. "It's a violent crime, it happens all over the world all the time when people are not being so-called civilized so there's nothing that happens in this movie that we're not capable of."

It's a frightening possibility; perhaps that's partly why José Saramago's acclaimed novel has taken ten-plus years to get to the big-screen. In fact, it was a Canadian (actor and filmmaker Don McKellar) who finally adapted the gripping story of a city gone blind by a mysterious virus. As the film exemplifies, morals crumble under duress and life can swiftly unfold into chaos.

"Sadly, I don't think we do anything in this movie that is particularly unusual that we haven't seen in the news," insists Moore. "When we first walked in and saw the set of what the wards were supposed to look like after (they've been quarantined with the infected), it looked just like the Super Dome during (Hurricane) Katrina. I mean it looked exactly like that."

The authenticity of the sets only added to the ease of preparing to play the only person left with (in this case) the disability to see. Moore, who also starred in the 2006 dystopian drama Children of Men, insists such a bleak role is always easier to play than fantastical characters.

"If I had to emotionally say, 'Hey, I can be invisible', I don't know if I could figure out what that felt like," admits Moore. "But if it's something I've read about in the newspaper and I know people are actually capable of doing it then I can figure it out."

Spielberg's Eagle Eye lacks insight

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

When Steven Spielberg first came up with the idea for Eagle Eye, it probably seemed like an outrageous science fiction story.

Now, some 10 years later — and having handed the reins over to Disturbia director D.J. Caruso — Eagle Eye may be a high-octane, car crash-filled action flick, but it hardly contains the insightfulness of what it truly needs to work.

In an odd combination of North by Northwest, The Fugitive and even 2001: A Space Odyssey, Eagle Eye features Shia LaBeouf as Jerry, a unmotivated slacker who unwillfully gets paired up with single mom Rachel (Michelle Monaghan) after the duo receive mysterious phone calls from a strange female voice saying they've "been activated."

As such, the unlucky couple are cast on a dangerous unknown mission, while all kinds of technology — like cells, traffic lights, ATM machines — is manipulated along the way.

There is a twist to the plot that I won't spoil here, but unfortunately, the big revelation is too late into the film and of little shock value to really pay off.

The film's actual underlying intent is to shed light on society's complacency with surveillance and it even attempts to take a political stance towards national security.

While Eagle Eye only grazes these intriguing ideas, it also upstages them with endless shaky-cam car and foot chases. This is where Eagle Eye will pay off for most moviegoers: As a loud action flick with little to offer but nonsensical stimulation.

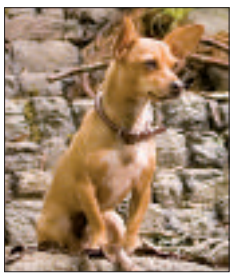
Beverly Hills Chihuahua goes to the dogs

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

FEATURE When filmmaker Raja Gosnell set out to make his latest movie, he never intended to save a legion of homeless animals. Fate however, can be a curious thing.

"(When you) put out the call, there's no 200 chihuahuas that just happen to be available so a lot of them were rescue dogs," admits the director behind cinema's latest talking-dog movie, Beverly Hills Chihuahua.



Papi (voiced by George Lopez).

Forced to cast sheltered canines, Gosnell was rewarded not just by housing some of Hollywood's lost lapdogs, but he was also surprised to discover how talented the wayward waggers were.

"Halfway through the movie, you'll forget you're watching dogs and get so wrapped up in the characters."

The movie — it opens next Friday — focuses on Chloe (voiced by Drew Barrymore), an uppity, Gucci-dressed pup that gets lost in Mexico and must claw her way home to Beverly Hills. Along the way, she meets Papi (voiced by comedian George Lopez), a serenading street-wise chihuahua that is played by perhaps one of the most expressive dogs in Tinseltown.

"Rusco is the dog who played Papi. Anytime he came on the set, he's all wagging and happy," says Gosnell of his favorite castmember. "One day before he was going to be put down, (animal trainer Mike Alexander) found him and rescued him and he's the star of the movie. He just had so much energy and (was) so ready to do anything that he was probably everyone's favorite on set."

Gosnell should know a thing or two about dogs. In 2002, he brought the cartoon canine Scooby-Doo to the big-screen. Although creating a computer-generated pooch was admittedly easier, Gosnell insists the pay off with real pups was certainly more rewarding.

"They've got so much soul in their eyes and so much nuance you can get from their performance.

"There's a life there; a living, breathing thing and you can never get that in (animation)."

Lane can't save Nights in Rodanthe

Nights in Rodanthe

Director: George C. Wolfe
Stars: Diane Lane, Richard Gere
Classification: PG
Rating: ●●

PHILIP BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Nights In Rodanthe is Diane Lane's latest exercise in middle age wish fulfillment — and it's a shame that such a talented actress has been reduced to a career of terrible romantic fantasies.

Lane is strong enough as an actress to actually pull off some of the clichéd and unbelievable scenes that her character has to go through, but her performance is not enough to save this lame duck of a movie.

Lane stars as Adrienne Willis a recent divorcee struggling to decide whether she wants to reunite with her ex-husband.

She takes a weekend trip to look after a friend's inn and is surprised to discover that the only guest in the hotel that weekend is a lonely doctor (Richard Gere). How convenient is that? Think these two lonely hearts will turn out to be an unlikely pair? It's all very predictable from page one and emotionally simplistic.

James Franco pops up in a cameo role as Gere's son, but his scenes are depressing to watch because they show just how easily a good actor can be made to look silly by bad material.

From geek dream to celebrity

PHILIP BROWN
for Metro Canada

Simon Pegg has managed to live out every movie geek's dream. He's gone from a pop culture obsessive to a cult celebrity beloved by his geeky brethren for co-writing and starring in Shaun Of The Dead and Hot Fuzz.

His latest feature, How To Lose Friends And Alienate People — a movie he only appears in as an actor — offers a change of pace for Pegg who is normally quite involved behind the scenes.

"It's good for me to let go and learn that I don't have to be implicit in every part of the project. It's actually refreshing," said Pegg during a recent visit to Toronto.

"It was really nice to read a script and think, 'No, I don't have to do anything to that.' I've read stuff in the past and thought, 'Um, let me fiddle with it.' But this was already there."

Simon Pegg plays notorious journalist Toby Young in How to Lose Friends and Alienate People.

Opening next Friday, the film is based on a book by the notorious Toby Young, a British journalist who is infamous for his ability to well, lose friends and alienate people. Pegg plays a fictionalized version of Toby in the film, but didn't think Young was that bad when he met him to prepare for the role.

"The people who know him through his work, they know a specific kind of Toby. They know the work-mode nutcase, a tenacious, irritating guy. Whereas I met this faintly eccentric nice guy and I found him very personable. But, I've spoken to people who say, 'Oh my god, I f—king hate him.'"

Curb Your Enthusiasm veteran Robert Weide makes his feature directorial debut with this movie, and Pegg found that Weide was quite prepared from all his television experience.

"The only way that it was possible to tell was that sometimes he would forget to say 'cut' because he's so used to using video. Everyone would just be listening to the celluloid whir through the camera thinking, 'He better say cut in a second or we're going to lose money.'"

He might be becoming a movie star himself, but Pegg is still a film fan at heart and is still shocked and intimidated to be working with such major talents.

"It's amazing and I hope it remains that way. It doesn't take long to dispel the celebrity myths, but I hope they're always there at first because they're quite fun."

Rockwell and cast don't choke in Choke

Choke

Director: Clark Gregg
Stars: Sam Rockwell, Anjelica Huston
Classification: 18A
Rating: ●●●

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

Sam Rockwell plays a sex-addicted scam artist in Choke.

It's nearly impossible not to compare Choke to the 1999 hit film Fight Club. The most obvious reason: Like Fight Club, Choke is based on a novel by Chuck Palahniuk, one of today's most gifted/ twisted authors.

Choke also shares many of the same deviant themes explored in Fight Club, but truth be told, that's where the parallels mostly end.

Sam Rockwell (Matchstick Men) plays Victor, a sex-addicted scam artist who, when he's not working his dead-end job at a colonial theme park or visiting his demented mom (Anjelica Huston) at a mental hospital, he's willfully choking in restaurants to earn the trust of rich patrons to save — and thereby feel indebted to — him.

While that may sound intriguing enough, soon Victor falls in love with his mother's new nurse (Kelly Macdonald of No Country for Old Men) and becomes obsessed with finding out the identity of his father.

Sure, it's as convoluted as it sounds, but apart from some fascinating unconventionalities — like Victor wondering if he is the second coming of Christ — Choke is weakened by trying to overly conform to romantic-comedy standards.

It's not Rockwell's fault. He certainly plays an obtuse character with sincerity. In fact, a great cast helps anchor a film that is practically gasping for a wicked eye.

Written and directed by actor-turned-filmmaker Clark Gregg — known for his supporting role on TV's The New Adventures of Old Christine — Choke unfortunately lacks a much-needed visual sense.

The story suffers when it's delivered with the straight-forwardness that Gregg gives it. When characters are this bent, the rest of the movie should be, too.

It's Maher vs. the faithful in Religulous

RICK MCGINNIS
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

Director Larry Charles and Bill Maher tackle religion in the film Religulous. It opens next Friday.

FEATURE Bill Maher has a reputation for being both outspoken and incautious.

At a press event for Religulous, his film diatribe against the persistence of faith in the modern world, he tells us that no matter what he's said about Jews, Christians or Muslim fundamentalists, it's the Australians who will probably get him.

"The fervor against me in Australia is so intense because I wore a Steve Irwin Halloween costume not long after he died," Maher recalls. "I looked like Steve Irwin and I had the stingray thing in my chest, and I have absolutely no regrets.

"I'm a PETA board member, and I believe that if you are killed by an animal in the wild you were probably doing something with that animal you absolutely should not have been doing."

Maher is clearly amused by the whole incident, but he gets animated, perhaps even a bit emotional, when the subject turns to his film's target.

He shrugs off the suggestion that holy books like the Bible might not be interpreted literally by many, if not most, of the devout who — one presumes — aren't the primary audience of his film, and that despite his obsession with their improbabilities, much of the Bible might be interpreted as an allegory.

"If it is, it's a horrible one. Have you read it? The first five books is nothing but God killing people for no good reason. Wiping people out. Genocide. Vengeance. Jealousy. In the movie we have that little bit about the Sodom and Gomorrah story, about people raping angels."

The most biting criticism of Religulous is that Maher and director Larry Charles have gone for soft targets and avoided anyone who might have put up an articulate defence.

Much of the film pits Maher against attendees at a Bible theme park in Florida, and the actor who plays Christ in the stage show there, or Orthodox Jews employed in constructing Rube Goldberg type gadgets that allow them to, say, make a phone call on the Sabbath.

There are a lot of good laughs in Religulous, but for Maher's broader point to actually bite, you have to believe — as he obviously does — that every form of faith is equivalent, and that the beliefs of the most naïve hold for everyone else. Maher bristles at the suggestion.

"People want to have it both ways. On the one hand they say, 'There are these smart religious people, why don't you go after them?' Excuse me, if you believe in a talking snake and you believe that the world is 5,000 years old, and you believe that you're drinking the blood of a 2,000 year old space god on Sunday, ipso facto you're a rube. That's not clear thinking."

Movie morsels

Ricky Gervais and Greg Kinnear star in Ghost Town.

Burn After Reading

REVIEW Barely a year after Joel and Ethan Coen released one of the finest movies of their career, No Country For Old Men, the auteur siblings have returned.

In typical Coen style they made a tonal 180-degree turn, moving from a tightly crafted thriller that ruminates on the nature of violence to a fast-paced comedic farce that plays hatchet murders for slapstick comedy.

Given that No Country saw the brothers regain the edge and craft of their early thrillers, there was hope that this movie would return them to the comedic heyday of Raising Arizona and The Big Lebowski.

Unfortunately, that didn't happen. While Burn After Reading is a better comedy than the brothers' recent Hollywood dalliances like Intolerable Cruelty, it's still far too inconsistent to match their finest work.

Ghost Town

REVIEW If you don't know who Ricky Gervais is, Ghost Town is staring straight at you. Why? Well, because this all-too-familiar romantic comedy is desperately aiming to expose the British comic sensation to a new audience.

Gervais plays a selfish arse of a dentist named Pincus who, after a near-death experience, obtains the sole ability to communicate with New York City's ghosts — those who are walking around, waiting to earn their wings by completing unfinished business with their loved ones.

There's nothing entirely new about this film. Whether it's the classic Christmas flick It's a Wonderful Life or 1990's Ghost or even The Sixth Sense, this movie shares too many similarities with cinema's previous sentimentalities with the afterlife.

Lakeview Terrace

●●●½

REVIEW If you think the neighbour playing his Nickelback CD too loud is irritating, wait until you meet Abel Turner in Lakeview Terrace. Now that is a bad neighbour. In the Neil LaBute thriller, Samuel L. Jackson plays the racist LAPD cop and widowed father who rules his small cul-de-sac with the iron fist of Stalin. When interracial couple Chris (Patrick Wilson) and Lisa (Kerry Washington) move in next door, Turner sees to it to drive the newlyweds out. While the tension builds, so do the violent, destructive battles between Turner and Chris until the neighborhood literally goes up in flames.

Steve Gow/Metro Canada

Righteous Kill

REVIEW The publicity for Jon Avnet's Righteous Kill is committed to selling the film around Robert De Niro and Al Pacino sharing the screen, as if such an event were a natural phenomenon somewhere on the order of Halley's Comet.

The fact is that the two men have been in the same film twice before, once in Michael Mann's Heat and in Godfather II. The fact is that if there were a compelling reason to pair Pacino and De Niro like some sort of twitchy, bellowing Martin and Lewis, it would have been done many times by now. The two men might be able to steal scenes from lesser actors, but together their onscreen chemistry is like diet soda and a candy bar — fine on their own, but together they diminish the other's pleasures and benefits and leave us feeling twice as remorseful.

Coppola revisits The Godfather

JIM REYNO
jim.reyno@metronews.ca

It's an offer film buffs can't refuse.

Director Francis Ford Coppola has overseen the digital restoration of his landmark films The Godfather and The Godfather, Part II.

We're talking (actually, the press release is) "extensive frame-by-frame examination and restoration utilizing state-of-the-art digital technology."

That sounds serious. That's why it took more than a year. It's not something you'd do for every flick. Who wants to go frame by frame through Tango and Cash for 365 days?

But The Godfather saga? Both films won Academy Awards for best picture. The Godfather won in 1972; the sequel two years later.

Filmmaker Stanley Kubrick went so far as to say The Godfather is "possibly the greatest movie ever made."

"It's a gangster movie, but it's doing a number of things that most gangster movies don't."
Jerry White

Maybe more importantly than any accolades, Coppola's interpretation of novelist Mario Puzo's tale of the Corleone family created the blueprint for the many organized-crime movies that have followed.

Or at least it should be the blueprint.

"It's a gangster movie, but it's doing a number of things that most gangster movies don't," said Jerry White, director of film studies at the University of Alberta. "It's a lot more ambitious and sophisticated."

Loyalty, family and integration are among the themes explored by The Godfather, but those soft words seem out of place in this story. Like a horse head between the sheets.

Francis Ford Coppola spent more than a year restoring The Godfather.

"It does all the stuff that gangster films are supposed to do," said White. "It has the kind of violence — exciting violence and vividly realized violence — all that kind of good, pulpy genre stuff is in The Godfather, for sure.

"But it's a lot more sophisticated about the ethical quandaries inherent in that kind of violence. It's a lot more sophisticated about the political and the social meaning of that kind of violence."

As for the restoration, White says it will revitalize one of the things that make The Godfather a masterpiece.

"The movie really is one of the great works of American cinema, and a lot of it has to do with the colour," he said.

"It is this incredibly rich, vibrant, very visually lush piece of work. Some of that has to do with camera movement, but a lot of it has to do with colour.

"It's a really beautifully visualized piece of work."

If you go

- The Godfather will also be shown in Toronto at AMC Yonge & Dundas for a week, beginning tonight.

Dreaming of Patti Smith

Patti Smith: Dream of Life

Director: Steven Sebring
Stars: Patti Smith
Classification: PG
Rating: ●●½

JIM REYNO
jim.reyno@metronews.ca

REVIEW More a piece of performance art than a rock documentary in the traditional sense, Dream of Life is an in-depth look inside the world of poet/painter/rocker Patti Smith.

Smith herself narrates Dream of Life, full of stark and striking imagery from her life seamlessly and hauntingly presented by director Steven Sebring.

The film opens with Smith listing the major events of her life, as if she were jotting them down in point form. For the remainder of Dream of Life, she elaborates and fills in the blanks with interviews, concert performances, backstage footage and scenes from her family life collected over 10 years of filming.

One particularly revealing scene occurs when Smith goes to visit her parents. Most of the world knows her as the hard-edged, rock/punk innovator. But we get to see Smith from another perspective, as she eats a burger in her mother's crowded kitchen, and sits on a couch holding hands with her father.

It's hard to believe that this is the same woman who famously sang, "Jesus died for somebody's sins, but not mine."

Dream of Life will appeal to a very specific audience — Patti Smith fanatics. If you have only a marginal interest in her work, this may be too much for you. The documentary does drag at times, and there's occasionally an arty pretentiousness that will leave some people rolling their eyes. And if you have to ask who Patti Smith is, steer clear of Dream of Life — her music is a more accessible way to introduce yourself to her art.

Shoot on Sight dead on

Shoot on Sight

Director: Jag Mundhra
Stars: Naseeruddin Shah, Greta Scacchi, Om Puri, Brian Cox
Classification: 14A
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕⊕

JIM REYNO
jim.reyno@metronews.ca

Tariq Ali (Naseeruddin Shah) is a London cop caught between two worlds in Shoot on Sight.

REVIEW Shoot on Sight is a complicated drama that addresses family life, racism, politics, religion and terrorism. But in the end, it pays off as a good, old-fashioned police thriller.

A fictional story based on the London police's order to shoot suspected terrorists after the July 2005 transit-system bombings, Muslim cop Tariq Ali (Naseeruddin Shah) is called to lead the investigation of the killing of an innocent Muslim man at a subway stop. Ali is the flashpoint for all the issues of this film. The pressure comes from everywhere: Distrusted by his co-workers, his own fellow Muslims and troubled by parenting problems. It seems Ali will never get any peace. Shah gives the role a quiet dignity and restraint. Yet there's also an intensity; building and building until the resolution of the story.

Director Jag Mundhra has a lot to handle, and the film is on the cusp on having too many story lines (some scenarios are brought up and promptly dropped). But Mundhra unfolds things naturally, so the complex story is never overwhelming or forced.

Shoot on Sight avoids the easy stereotypes: Terrorists bad, police good. No one gets to stand on any moral high ground for long. It's like real life: There are many factors at play in our lives, and we're all flawed.

Mundhra effectively portrays the terrorists themselves, and gives us a sense of the frustration and desperation someone must feel to be willing to die to kill others. At the same time, we get the police perspective. If they shoot an innocent Muslim man because they think he's a terrorist, they're racist. If they don't prevent a terrorist attack, they're incompetent.

All of these ideas are presented in the context of an entertaining drama. Shoot on Sight isn't preachy — just fascinating.

Tell No One stylish but contrived thriller

Tell No One

Director: Guillaume Canet
Stars: Francois Cluzet, Kristin Scott Thomas
Classification: 18A
Rating: ⊕⊕½

PHILIP BROWN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Dating back to the 1950s, French filmmakers have always had a remarkable ability to take pulpy American crime novels and elevate them to the level of cinematic art.

There are many examples of this phenomenon, but sadly Tell No One is not one of them. This stylish thriller by part-time director and full-time actor Guillaume Canet is very well-constructed and dripping with style, but the movie is little more than a brilliant set-up in search of an ending.

The film is about a doctor named Alex, who thought he witnessed his wife's death, but suddenly finds himself the primary suspect as her killer when dead bodies are found at the murder site eight years later.

The same day, Alex sees a video on the Internet suggesting that his wife might still be alive. The film then becomes a race against time with Alex attempting to prove his innocence before the police can nab him for her murder.

The actors are excellent across the board, with an amazing lead performance from Francois Cluzet, who runs the full gamut of emotions throughout the film. Director Canet also stages some quite impressive set pieces as well including a lengthy foot chase throughout Paris that is as exciting as anything coming out of Hollywood. All of which makes it even more disappointing when the movie turns to the contrived.

With a more carefully crafted finale, this could have been a classic French thriller. Without it, the experience is merely frustrating.

Busta Rhymes detained at U.K. airport

PEOPLE Rapper Busta Rhymes was detained at a London airport yesterday by immigration officers who said he should not be allowed into the country, a concert promoter said.

He was released, however, after a judge ruled Rhymes was entitled to either bail or immediate release while he formulated a defence. Justice Julian Flaux said it was "difficult to see upon what basis" Rhymes had been detained.

Flaux ordered a hearing for Rhymes' legal challenge to the government's attempt to keep him out of Britain. It will likely be held this afternoon.

MySpace to offer millions of songs

DEAL MySpace.com is offering millions of free songs to visitors to its social networking site.

MySpace Music has four of the largest music labels on board — EMI Music, Sony BMG, Universal Music and Warner Music.

This new music site will take on Apple's iTunes and help these music labels counter declining CD sales and revenues as they adapt to a world of online music.

It will also let its users buy music, offer the sale of concert tickets and merchandise, and will also make money from the venture with advertisements.

Kingston street logic

Terry Lynn blends stark lyrics with electro, house and Caribbean beats

ROB McMAHON
for Metro Canada

Dirty house, southern hip hop and electro take a Caribbean holiday on Terry Lynn's new disc.

Kingston Logic 2.0 blends Lynn's reggae flow with MIA-style bangers. The album flips Sista Nancy's legacy into a satirical take on the rudeboys of gangster artists like Bounty Killer.

"I've been doing dancehall for a long time, and found it wasn't fulfilling anymore," she said. "You get 20 different artists getting onto one rhythm, and that does not allow the artists to express themselves."

Growing up with her mom in the markets of inner-city Kingston, trading rhymes with musicians who banged out rhythms on homemade drums, Lynn sharpened her skills by portraying the dark sides of Waterhouse.

"I'm really wondering if the world will be around much longer," she said. "I needed to do something about it in my own way, and that's what made me do my lyrical journalism."

The resulting album blends Lynn's stark lyrics with beats from Toronto-based producer Phred. Despite the difference in geography — Phred is from Calgary — the pair have a lot in common. Lynn's partner grew up listening to Jamaican music, and so despite pulling in influences from U.K. grime, dirty south, electro and French house, his beats are consistent with a Caribbean sense of rhythm. But even the album's most traditional-sounding tune — the folksy crooner River of Babylon — contains the underlying menace of a distorted blast that echoes through the song.

PETER DEAN RICKARDS/LAST GANG RECORDS

Kingston Logic 2.0 was released this week by Last Gang Records. For more information on the project, and to view photos from The Afflicted Yard, visit phreemusic.com or kingstonlogic.com.

"When me and Phred hooked up, we started drawing from different beats … But our experiments are still Jamaican — that's still the root (of our sound)," she said. "It's like artwork: If everyone's painting on canvas, why not paint on piece of wood or piece of stone?"

Kingston Logic references the situations that Lynn has watched growing up in Jamaica — a region where natural disasters, gun violence and the impact of economic policies vie for status in a cycle of tragedy. Income disparity and crime only add to the area's troubles, which include hurricanes and floods that tear houses apart during seven-month rainy seasons. The dark mood is reflected in the project's accompanying artwork: Peter Dean Rickards' photographs of The Afflicted Yard and shots of Lynn pointing a massive revolver.

"We started drawing from different beats … But our experiments are still Jamaican — that's still the root (of our sound)"
Terry Lynn

"Those images are not meant to induce violence — I'm against violence. I use satirical images to explain what goes on," said Lynn. "I'm trying to raise awareness about crime and violence in Jamaica … (and that) while some people can enjoy the beaches, most people — underground people, grassroots people — are struggling with their daily lives."

When rock 'n' roll hit the campaign trail

SoundCheck

Alan Cross
alan@ongoinghistory.com

Election 2008

While former U.S. president Ronald Reagan was beloved by conservatives, he was generally reviled by those on the left, including much of the rock 'n' roll community. Strange, then, that Ronnie was the one to usher in the era of the rock-song-as-campaign song.

Up until 1984, candidates for high office in North American tended to avoid using rock music to pump up the crowds at rallies, conventions and speeches. Some — like Richard Nixon — even used ad agencies to custom-write songs for their campaigns.

In '84, though, Reagan's people (starting with conservative writer George Will, who thought that Bruce Springsteen might actually endorse Reagan) wrongly interpreted Born in the U.S.A. as a patriotic song and began using it at rallies. Springsteen — a longtime registered Democrat — was most annoyed and asked that they cut it out. Meanwhile, Democrat Walter Mondale chose Bill Conti's Gonna Fly Now, the theme from all the Rocky movies. How cliché.

The 1988 campaign was a real snoozer with George Bush's This Land is Your Land by Woody Guthrie — who was ironically a lifelong socialist — facing off against Michael Dukakis and Neil Diamond's America.

Leave it to Bill Clinton to shake things up again by introducing Fleetwood Mac's Don't Stop in 1992, a song that became inseparable from every Clinton who has campaigned for office ever since. Bob Dole couldn't do any better than a reworked version of the Sam and Dave song, Soul Man. "Dole Man" was downright embarrassing.

Things evolved dramatically for the 2000 election. Al Gore's Democrats enlisted some Canadian help from Bachman-Turner Overdrive's You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet, which was augmented by The Call's Let the Day Begin. Meanwhile, current U.S. President George W. Bush countered with Right Now from Van Halen — but only after Tom Petty threatened to sue over the Republicans' appropriation of I Won't Back Down. (In a classic screw-you move, Petty performed the song for the party faithful just minutes after Gore conceded.)

Bush went country in 2004, latching on to Brooks and Dunn's Only in America, while John Kerry picked Springsteen's Never Surrender in between shots of CCR's Fortunate Son, a calculated shot at W's ability to avoid serving in the army.

Next time: In 2008, things are even more interesting than ever on both sides of the border. But once again, there have been controversies. Next week we'll find out which candidates rock the most — or the least — irony?

Republican Ronald Reagan used Bruce Springsteen's Born in the U.S.A., while Democrat Bill Clinton went with Fleetwood Mac's Don't Stop on the campaign trail.

I unjunked my body!

Lina works in the fitness industry in Ottawa and recently came across an article on detoxing. Here is her story;

"I was having a hard time losing those stubborn extra pounds and I was tired a lot, which showed in my face. So when I came across a Biofirm story in the local newspaper, it made me curious.

It definitely made sense to me that we get tired and bloated from too many toxins in our foods and from our environment. But I didn't know that it made us gain weight! So I purchased a box of Biofirm and took the recommended 6 tablets a day for a month with lots of water and high-fibre foods. I was determined to unjunk my body!"

I lost 11 pounds on the detox!

"In the first 4 weeks I lost 7 pounds. I definitely felt lighter and my skin was looking great – I was glowing! I had read that it could be unpleasant to take Biofirm but I actually enjoyed it, especially because you are still able to do your daily duties. You don't have to stay home or do it on the weekends.

After the 30 days detox, I wanted to continue, so I bought another 14 days of tablets. Again, I lost another 4 pounds and my clothes were getting very loose! I was thrilled - and the great part is that I didn't have to exercise vigorously for 6 weeks!!"

DETOXING: A GREAT WAY TO START A HEALTHIER LIFE

Everyday, our bodies are exposed to toxins from the air we breathe, the water we drink and especially the processed foods we eat. If our bodies get overburden with toxins, our liver suffers and we start seeing the effect on our health; Our skin is affected, we get tired, we retain water, get headaches, digestion problems, bad breath and find it especially hard to lose weight.

Researchers have now discovered the biological cause of those stubborn pounds; Toxic particles bind water in the bodies' soft tissue and inhibit your metabolism from burning fat efficiently. The Conclusion: To lose weight, you must first cleanse your body!

Old Prince of rap

Kenyan-born Shad up for Polaris Prize

ROB McMAHON
for Metro Canada

Shad thinks of hip hop in geographic terms.

And luckily, the Vancouver-based, Kenyan-born artist (real name Shadrach Kabango) has one of the genre's most treasured sounds in mind — that of the mid-'90s Eastern States.

"It all happens subconsciously … depending on the environment you're in … (whether) Cali or Houston or New York or Chicago," he said. "Out here, when I was growing up I was into the New York stuff, Native Tongues, Chicago, some West Coast groups like the Pharcyde."

Hip hop retains its regional basis in Canada. Despite our country's smaller population, big distances mean large shifts in sound, from Buck 65's Maritime twang to the housey snap of Edmonton's Cadence Weapon and the A.D.D. blends of Toronto's Keys n' Crates. On a global level, while Shad shares some background with Somalian-born K'Naan, he's more rooted in the North American esthetic.

"(K'naan) came to Canada when he was a lot older than I did, and so had a lot of traditional African musical influence," said Shad. "My parents have African music and I used to listen to it at home, but I grew up more around North American music … We both speak about some similar stuff, but musically I'm more North American."

A few tracks into Shad's Polaris Music Prize-nominated album The Old Prince makes it clear Common is a massive influence. From the soul samples and jazz interludes to introspective spoken-word intros and lyrics that tackle everyday issues with perspective and humour, the disc recalls early Common albums such as Resurrection.

"Common is my biggest influence — he was the one guy that I liked best, because he's the best," said Shad. "He's always at the next level — with the lyrics, the way he says things — on all levels. From his level of depth of insight and honesty to his straight lyrical skill."

Shad's mixture of soul samples and live instrumentation, heard in tracks like Hey Ocean!'s Vagabond, comes because he finds it more fun to rap alongside a human than a laptop. Production comes secondary to lyric writing: It's more important to craft a funny, honest verse than a head-nodding beat.

"Honesty for me is not much of a challenge, since it's always been the way I've operated," he said. "There's a lot of humour in reality, so I want to have fun and point out things that are funny."

Blaine unhappy with stunt's end

Magician-daredevil David Blaine says he's unhappy with how he ended his latest stunt: Hanging upside-down without a net high over Central Park for 60 hours.

The 35-year-old endurance artist, who completed the stunt Wednesday night, expressed his disappointment in an appearance yesterday morning on Live With Regis and Kelly.

"I had dreamed up the most amazing ending for a stunt ever," he said.

Blaine said his grand finale of diving from a platform 13 metres to the ground while attached to a harness didn't go according to plan. He was supposed to jump and, at three metres, be swept away by a bunch of helium-filled balloons.

Instead, he dangled awkwardly for a moment before disappearing in an ascent into the night sky.

Blaine said ABC, which aired the event in a two-hour special called David Blaine: Dive of Death, had encouraged him not to dive because of wind.

"I wasn't going to let everybody down, so I just jumped, and somehow the guys with the balloons made it work, and they pulled me slowly up and I went over into the park and they pulled me down," he said.

Blaine added: "I know that it didn't work right when all my friends called up and said, 'Wait, what happened? I'm confused.'"

Did his head feel heavy with blood during his upside-down act?

"In the beginning it did," he said. "At the end of the first day I thought I wasn't going to make it. I didn't know what I was going to do, but I didn't want to disappoint everybody, so I kept pushing and going as hard as I could."

Comedian Kattan's wife wants divorce

PEOPLE Comedian Chris Kattan has been slapped with divorce papers from his estranged wife Sunshine Tutt, just weeks after his publicist insisted they had "no plans for divorce," imdb.com reports.

The pair wed during an intimate ceremony in Yosemite Valley, Calif., on June 28, after a three-year courtship.

But they split just eight weeks into their marriage, with Kattan, 37, filing for legal separation. However, model Tutt, 31, has now taken the proceedings one step further, by requesting a dissolution of the marriage, reports TMZ.com.

In legal papers filed in Los Angeles Superior Court recently, Tutt cites "irreconcilable differences" for the breakup.

Trump's company hit with lawsuit

IN COURT Donald Trump has become the target of a $5-million US lawsuit filed by a Manhattan, N.Y., lawyer who alleges the business tycoon's Trump Organization failed to fix a leak in his office, imdb.com reports.

John Bostany filed suit against the real estate mogul's primary company, claiming his office, located in a building owned by Trump's firm, was devastated by leaks and floods that rendered him unable to work.

The lawyer agreed recently to pay one month's rent, a total of $22,000, in Manhattan Supreme Court, after the Trump Organization challenged Bostany in a lower court, claiming he has been defaulting on payments since last year.

The court judge is deciding whether the suits will be consolidated. METRO NEWS SERVICES

O'Brien fighting addiction again?

PEOPLE TV co-host Pat O'Brien has reportedly checked into rehab for the second time this year in a bid to kick his alcohol addictions, imdb.com reports.

O'Brien

O'Brien is reportedly seeking help at an undisclosed location, just days after he was fired as co-presenter of The Insider last week.

If the reports are true, it will be O'Brien's third attempt at rehab. He previously sought treatment in March 2005, and again earlier this year.

Phillips doing 'great' in rehab

PEOPLE One month after being arrested and charged with heroin and cocaine possession, actress Mackenzie Phillips is "doing great," People.com reports her sister as saying.

Phillips

"She's in recovery now, and we're so proud of her," Bijou Phillips said. "This whole thing is the best thing that's ever happened for her."

Mackenzie, 48, has long struggled with drug addiction and has checked into rehab several times.

But Bijou, 28, is hopeful about Mackenzie's progress. "I'm thankful that this happened and that we were able to do this," Bijou said. "It's like we have our sister back."

Prime-time ratings favour reality

SCARY NUMBERS: The reality was awful to behold, but the idea behind having five reality TV hosts at the helm of last Sunday's dismal Emmys award show had a brute logic to it, especially when you look at the ratings for the last year of network primetime.

According to the numbers for the last 52 weeks, the Top 6 shows were the two nights of American Idol, and four nights of Sunday Night Football — and it isn't until ninth place before a drama shows up on the list — Fox's House, with 14.9 million viewers, just under half of the numbers for the first place Idol performance show. Two And A Half Men is the only sitcom on the Top 20, way down in 16th place — a sad but telling indicator of how far the genre has fallen in recent years.

It's not at all surprising to find reality competition shows like Idol or DWTS up there with a venerable institution of sports broadcasting; the appeal of both shows is similar, as they're more like events than just entertainment, the sorts of shows that still rely on a communal viewing experience, if only so that you won't have the payoff spoiled for you the next day when reading the newspaper or listening to commuters and co-workers talk about either the results or the score.

Sports and competition reality are the last healthy remnants of scheduled TV viewing left on primetime, as drama and comedy consumption has slid into the realm of post-broadcast viewing on PVRs and downloading in the short term, and weekend-long DVD season box set marathons in the long term. Looking to the pitiless bottom line, network primetime has become little more than a delivery system for cheap but cheerful and formulaic reality competition shows, and sooner or later the accounting departments will insist that their colleagues in programming respect this truth.

When that day finally comes — and I'm not holding my breath, given the sclerotic nature of network executive decision-making — we might finally see the first moves toward unleashing comedy and dramatic programming from either the fall-spring and summer season or the much-vaunted new "52-week season" and the overdue arrival of no seasons at all, in favour of a marketplace of on-demand viewing.

There's an old joke that, what with their ubiquity in syndication, shows like Friends, Seinfeld and The Simpsons are more like utilities than TV shows — you can find one on at almost any time, and turn them on and off like municipal water or electricity. Since syndication is the real cash cow for anyone with a financial interest in a TV show, it's inevitable that producers will eventually see the wisdom in a system that treats any show, no matter how many episodes it has in its library, like a syndicated program. Right now, as a TV viewer, it's like sitting around on a horse, waiting for someone to invent the car.

Going Out

Out of tragedy, comedy is born

If, as it's often been said, that farce is just tragedy where the leading character doesn't give in, then you couldn't find a more perfect star than Peter Scolari for Boeing-Boeing, which opened yesterday at Stage West.

FREDERICK M. BROWN/GETTY IMAGES

Peter Scolari stars in Boeing-Boeing, which opened yesterday, at Stage West in Mississauga.

The man best known for his ongoing roles in TV series like Bosom Buddies and Newhart has all the right comic stuff to keep the laughter rolling in this story of a philanderer with too many stewardesses and too few bedrooms, but he's come to that mirthful finesse at a considerable personal cost.

A childhood spent with an abusive father, two painfully broken marriages — both with children attached — and a midlife diagnosis of bipolar disorder may not seem like the breeding ground for laughter, but then, you don't know Peter Scolari.

He shows up for lunch at Toronto's hippest new eatery, Nota Bene, in chic casual attire, looking a full decade younger than his 53 years and ready to discuss anything — especially himself — with a combination of wit and honesty that's rare in show business.

"My mom and dad? Oh, they were a fiery pair," he says, jumping in the deep end of the pool right from the start. "They stayed together for the kids and also because they were hopelessly in love with each other, but they were totally incompatible.

"Mom was a recovering alcoholic … while dad was a lawyer and a rageful man."

Scolari's opened the door to the dark side a bit too suddenly, and you can see him pause as the demons pour out. "Now that my siblings (and I) have children of our own, we don't see how a man could treat his children the way he treated us. We look on ourselves as the survivors of psychological abuse."

The first thing in his young life that ever gave him real pleasure was when he starred as Finch in his high school production of How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying when he was 16.

"I did a scene," he recalls, "got some laughs, walked offstage, and then bam! I had a white-light experience. This is it, I thought. This is what I want to do with my life. I'm going to be an actor."

Scolari eventually ended up starring in the sitcom Bosom Buddies alongside a young Tom Hanks.

He and Hanks became close friends on the show and he echoes the sentiment when talking about his newest show.

He mentions the teamwork necessary for the Boeing-Boeing. "We have to be like Hope and Crosby, Abbott and Costello…"

Hanks and Scolari?

"Yeah," Scolari says with a wistful smile that makes him seem 25 again for just a moment, "we could have managed it pretty handily." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Newhart

- After Bosom Buddies, Scolari landed on the hit sitcom, Newhart, where a guest shot as the uptight Michael Harris eventually turned into a role that would last 142 episodes.

The word on the street is, literacy

RAFAEL BRUSILOW
for Metro Canada

EVENT It's time to put away your TV remote and dust off your comfy reading chair because this weekend, books are back in.

The Word on The Street Festival rolls into Toronto this Sunday, Sept. 28 at Queen's Park, bringing out bookworms and word lovers of all kinds to buy, sell and talk about books.

With the festival expected to draw more than 200,000 visitors, good books are clearly still a hit.

"The goal of the festival can be summarized in four words: celebrate reading, advocate literacy."
Alexander Moorshead

Festival director Alexandra Moorshead sees the continued popularity of reading as a victory for the imagination against the seemingly unstoppable tide of television droll and video game catatonia.

"Reading connects you to things that are outside of your immediate experience. It opens up your world in a way that no other form of entertainment can," Moorshead said.

With more than 250 book and magazine publishers and sellers showing off their wordy wares to the public, expect the scent of milled paper and a big selection of printed verbiage to thumb through.

Main events at the festival include the Bestsellers Stage, which will feature appearances by renowned novelist Joy Fielding and Giller Prize winner Austin Clarke to head a lineup of more than 200 authors. Another stage, dedicated to the art of song writing, will feature indie bands Ohbijou and Forest City Lovers.

Aspiring writers should find plenty of good advice at one of the festival's writing workshops, unless they wilt underneath the sheer weight of their own inadequacy surrounded by so many published works first.

Youth literacy is a primary focus of the festival this year with the Little Reader's Tent offering interactive seminars to entice parents and kids alike to make daily literacy practice a part of their lives. Ultimately, Moorshead says the festival is a chance to get people from all walks of life inspired to read.

"The Word on The Street Festival inspires people to read more by introducing them to new authors and forms of reading they may not normally consider. The goal of the festival can be summarized in four words: celebrate reading, advocate literacy," Moorshead said.

The festival also runs in Vancouver, Kitchener and Halifax.

Recipe of the day

COOK SMART FOR A HEALTHY HEART

Teriyaki Swordfish Kebabs with Sweet Chili Noodles

INGREDIENTS:
550 g thick swordfish steaks
4 small red onions, quartered
1 large yellow pepper, seeded and cubed
2 limes, sliced in wedges

MARINADE:
4 tablespoons teriyaki marinade
1 tablespoon clear honey
1 teaspoon sesame oil
1 garlic clove, crushed

SWEET CHILI NOODLES:
250 g fine Chinese egg noodles
1 tablespoon sunflower oil
2 garlic cloves, sliced
1 tablespoon finely chopped fresh ginger
120 g snow peas, sliced
6 green onions, shredded
4 tablespoons sweet chili sauce
2 tablespoons reduced-salt soy sauce

METHOD:
1. Soak wooden skewers in cold water for 30 minutes. Preheat barbecue.
2. Cut swordfish into bite-sized pieces. Mix together marinade ingredients in a bowl, add fish and toss to coat. Thread fish onto skewers, alternating the fish with red onions, peppers and limes.
3. Barbecue kebabs over medium heat until fish is just cooked but still slightly translucent in the centre and golden-brown. Turn kebabs halfway through cooking and baste with remaining marinade.
4. While kebabs are cooking, cook noodles according to package instructions. Drain. Heat oil in a wok over high heat and cook garlic and ginger for 30 seconds. Add snow peas and green onions and stir-fry for 1 minute. Add noodles with the sweet chili and soy sauces, stir and toss together for 2 minutes.
5. Spoon noodle mixture onto plates and top with fish kebabs.

Stone didn't lose custody: Lawyer

PEOPLE Actress Sharon Stone did not lose physical custody of her young son with ex-husband Phil Bronstein, imdb.com reports her lawyers as saying.

According to documents detailing a custody hearing earlier this month, Bronstein would "have permanent sole physical custody of child. (The) court finds that respondent Sharon Stone failed to meet her burden of proof and denies respondent's (Stone's) request for modification of custody." But the documents also stated: "Custody, visitation, holiday and vacation schedule shall remain in place as outlined on 10/4/07 order," — a document which stated that Stone had joint physical and legal custody of her son Roan, according to website TMZ.com. The only reason that the case went to court again was in an attempt to get her son to move to a school in California, according to the star's lawyer. Marty Singer says, "She wanted the court to modify the order so her child could go to school in Los Angeles. But the court felt that, for whatever reason, that she did not meet a burden to move him out of San Francisco during the school year."

Watts allegedly shouts down paparazzi

OUTBURST Pregnant actress Naomi Watts reportedly lashed out at the paparazzi in Los Angeles after her repeated requests for peace were ignored, imdb.com reports.

The star was roaming Beverly Hills with close friend Rebecca Rigg when she was pursued by a group photographers. But the 39-year-old confronted the snappers when they refused to leave her alone. "What do you think you're doing to us? What the f--k do you think you are doing?" according to the Sydney Daily Telegraph, Watts yelled. Watts then ran into a nearby building and tried to wrestle a camera from a photographer.

Dita on Winehouse: 'I could tidy her up'

PEOPLE Burlesque star Dita Von Teese has offered troubled singer Amy Winehouse a makeover — and wants to start with her wardrobe, imdb.com reports.

The dancer also hopes to tackle the Rehab hitmaker's iconic beehive and thick makeup. "No matter how much she breaks down, she still has the beehive of sorts and the outfits and eyeliner," Von Teese says. "When I see pictures of her I wish I could tidy her up a bit."

Wedding bells for Nicky?

COUPLES Fashion designer Nicky Hilton and her TV producer boyfriend David Katzenberg are planning a winter wedding, imdb.com reports. The couple, both 25, have been dating for the past two years.

"They are thinking about a December or January wedding," an insider tells Star magazine. "They want it to take place after the Christian and Jewish holidays." Hilton is the sister of Paris Hilton and daughter of Hilton hotel heir Rick and Kathy Hilton. Katzenberg's dad is movie producer Jeffrey Katzenberg.

BREAKUPS Natalie Portman and her folk-rocker boyfriend Devendra Banhart have broken up, People.com reports. Portman, 27, began dating Banhart after starring in his Carmensita video, which was shot last March.

Drunks nearly ruined wedding

PEOPLE Patrick Dempsey and his wife have no decent photo memories of their wedding day — because their photographers were drunk, imdb.com reports. The Grey's Anatomy star married Jillian Fink in 1999, but their big day was almost ruined when the snappers drank too much alcohol before the ceremony.

"That was the only disastrous moment," Dempsey said. "But it was kind of entertaining."

Lucas prefers brunettes

PEOPLE Actor Josh Lucas has set his sights on a new belle — model Julia Restoin-Roitfeld, imdb.com reports. A friend of the star, who has dated Anne Hathaway and Salma Hayek, tells Star magazine, "He loves exotic looking brunettes. He has a serious crush."

"This makes no sense at all..."

by Joe O'Neill

The last time Sharon Stone was in the news, we saw her drawing on her vast reserves of philosophical education, geo-political knowledge, and fortune cookie messages to opine that the Sichuan earthquake was less a natural disaster than karmic retribution for China's policy on Tibet. Now I have to wonder, is Sharon Stone's failure to gain custody of her son a case of her suffering the bite of karma for invoking karma, is motherhood simply not one of her Basic Instincts, or is it just a really bad idea to mess with the Chinese? Of course, Stone's lawyer wants you to believe that his client hasn't been denied physical custody, she just couldn't change the specific arrangement. I'm going to ignore that, because if I were interested in the facts I wouldn't be writing on this page, and you, dear reader, wouldn't be reading it. We want salacious and unfounded explanations for celebrity phenomena, where the least factual is always the most accurate. We want to learn that Stone's setback is either a result of her repeatedly crossing and uncrossing her legs in front of the judge's bench, or of her failure to do so. We want to know where the judge has plotted her on the Scale of Awful Motherhood. Where does she rank in relation to say, Joan Crawford, Dina Lohan, Livia Soprano, and Medea?

Billy Bob 'still close' with Jolie

PEOPLE Angelina Jolie's former husband Billy Bob Thornton has revealed he is still close to the actress and she is one of his best friends, the Daily Mail reports.

The actor, who split from Jolie in 2003 after three years of marriage, says he only remembers the positive aspects of their relationship and has the "utmost respect" for the 33-year-old.

"I've never said anything but good things about any relationship I've had and, frankly, that's all I remember about them. I have the utmost respect for Angelina. She's a very sweet person, very talented and one of my best friends in the world," he told Parade.com

Thornton's comments follow recent rumours that Jolie's relationship with her partner, actor Brad Pitt, is on the rocks, but recent reports say the couple is moving to Berlin, Germany, together.

Pink trying to move on, becoming 'boy crazy'

BREAKUPS Pink has blamed her hectic life as a pop star for her marriage breakup, confessing she became sick of trying to organize quality time with her ex, Carey Hart, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The couple's two-year marriage ended in February this year and Pink, who's real name is Alecia Moore, is adamant that she still loves the motocross racer, but their busy lives drove them apart.

"It's such a cliche when you talk about a Hollywood divorce, but the scheduling did get very hard," she says. "It seemed that I was always the one left in charge of it. I got tired of being the Schedule Woman."

Pink admits she is planning to start dating again, but only when she finds someone better than her estranged husband.

"I'm kind of boy crazy at the moment, but I'm strictly, 'Look, don't touch.'"

COUPLES Actress Keira Knightley is in no rush to wed her actor boyfriend Rupert Friend because she prefers to take life "as it happens," imdb.com reports. The couple made their romance public in 2006 after wrapping up filming on their movie Pride and Prejudice. But Knightley insists she is not planning to marry anytime soon. "Marriage is a big thing for a lot of women, but not me," she tells People magazine. "I don't have plans. You never know what's going to happen day-to-day, so you might as well just deal with it as it happens."

Osbourne pans J. Lo, Beckham, for being fake

PEOPLE Kelly Osbourne has panned singer Jennifer Lopez and designer Victoria Beckham for coming across as fake, femalefirst.co.uk reports. The reality TV star sat near the pair at the recent Marc Jacobs fashion show in New York and insists they were uncomfortable and didn't seem like friends.

"I was directly across from Victoria and Jennifer and I couldn't stop staring at them both — I looked at them more than the clothes!" Osbourne says. "I know it's not my place to say, and I hope I'm wrong, but I've never seen two people pretend to like each other more in my life. They were holding hands, but it looked like Victoria was holding a dirty bit of toilet paper. They were sat right next to each other but you could have sat a whole other person in between them."

Introducing Metro, your new neighbourhood grocery store.

We're delighted to announce the arrival of a brand new name in groceries: Metro. You may recognize our locations. You may even recognize the people who serve you. We're the new name on a very familiar store: Dominion. What we'd like to introduce you to are the exciting changes taking place inside. From our meats to our breads to our delicious meals to go, you'll meet some wonderful new foods and some delightful new food ideas.

We're into marble.

Our Red Grill Angus Beef is perfectly marbled and exceptionally tender, making it barbecue perfect every time. In fact, we're told it matches any steakhouse beef served in a restaurant.

When we're not baking, we're preparing to bake.

Bread is best when it's fresh, so we bake ours three times a day. Our Irresistibles line of artisan breads are made with unbleached, naturally aged flour for mouth-watering loaves like crisp, soft sourdough baguettes and conversation-stopping flavours such as Green Olive and Chive. No wonder our breads are winning awards.

Haute Takeout.

In the mood for a night off? Imagine being able to pick up mains, sides and vegetables freshly prepared and ready for dinner. That's our "Entrées and More" program, a selection of unique and delicious dishes to enjoy at home. Some of our favourites: poached salmon with mango salsa, served with roasted butternut squash or spinach with roasted peppers and glazed ginger carrots.

No matter what's on your shopping list – our fresh-cut fruit, our artisan cheeses or our beautifully fresh produce – you'll find the highest standards in everything we sell and serve.

A passion for food.

You'll also find people passionate about what they do, who work tirelessly to bring out the best in food so that you can put the best on your table. So come in and meet our new look and name. Visiting hours are wide open.
